Thank You, Children!

School children are setting the pace in this year's Christmas campaign for the war-mutilated youngsters of Korea.

Hastily-formed carolling groups, school classes, Scout and Guide packs and 'teeners' clubs have taken the lead. Singly and in delegations they bring their money to The Times—in piggy banks, paper bags, tightly-rolled envelopes and sometimes just spilled from a little clenched fist.

As one sub-teen girl explained in a letter:

"We're so well off, I can't enjoy my own Christmas unless I do something for them."

By some mystic instinct, youngsters of East and West are drawn together by the spirit of Christmas. Color means nothing to them, nor race, nor religion. At this tender age, they are happily free from prejudice.

And so they give—knowing, unselfishly, that the dreams of a little girl in Seoul are not far removed from those of a little girl in Victoria; that there is some kind of inequality, however incomprehensible, between life in peaceful Canada and war-ravaged Korea.

We grown-ups, who cause all these troubles, thank you, children of Victoria.

KOREAN CRIPPLED KIDDIES' FUND

Fine Response From Schools

Students of Norfolk House School for girls swelled the Korean Crippled Kiddies' Fund by $19.21 when they took a collection at the annual Christmas assembly Thursday.

Their collection was delivered to the Times in a brown paper bag, filled with pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and a few dollar bills.

The collection followed an address by the headmistress, Winifred A. Scott, in which she told of the need for Canadian boys and girls to think about the welfare of children in less fortunate lands.

Donations are listed today from seven schools, a fine example of generosity.

Money received has now passed the $4,000 mark.

The Christmas drive is for funds to build a rehabilitation centre for war-crippled children in Seoul's Sam Yook home for the disabled.

Contributions may be sent or brought to the Times downtown office, 1215 Broad, or to the main office, 2631 Douglas. Cheques may be made payable to the Korean Crippled Kiddies Fund.

Up-Island residents may send donations to the Times Duncan office, 30 Kenneth Street. All contributions are income tax deductible.

Pay Boost Won By City Teachers

More than 700 Greater Victoria school teachers will receive salary increases bringing them to the "approximate level" of Vancouver-metro area teacher salaries, arbitration board chairman Victoria lawyer J. Alan Baker said today.

He and two other lawyers, from the Victor Dryer, Q.C., Vancouver, and W. R. McIntyre, Victoria, had been studying the problem since Monday.

Representative teachers affected by the pay hike award are 202 teachers at the high school level, and 200 elementary school teachers.

Salaries of the first group, with six years training, will rise from $4,500 a year to $5,000, increasing in 14 years to $8,220.

Previous top salary was $7,260.

'Love in the Clouds' Leads to Danish Altar

AARHUS, Denmark (Reuters)—Robert Kellogg, son of a Chicago banker, was married today to Elisabeth Eriksen, daughter of a Danish farmer, climaxing a romance that began in the clouds over Canada two years ago.

Robert, 28, and Elisabeth, 24, were married at the high altar of ancient Aarhus Cathedral here in this historic East Jutland university town.

About 60 guests—mostly members of the two families—watched the ceremony. Hundreds of citizens lined the square outside or strained vainly for a glimpse of the couple from the side aisles of the long cathedral.

Their romance began two

THE TAIWAN PUZZLE

Mild Mr. Chen Brutally Blunt

This is the fourth in a series of articles by Times editor Bruce Hutchison written after his recent visit to Taiwan (Formosa), where he interviewed Chiang Kai-shek and other leaders of the free Chinese.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The hardest-working servant and general factotum of the Republic of China in Taiwan is its vice-president and prime minister, Mr. Chen Cheng.

His appearance is surprising, his thoughts terrifying. But the West had better understand them, for he is the heir apparent to President Chiang Kai-shek in a vital bastion of American power.

Mr. Chen, as he received me, looked as British as his pleasant chintz-cov-

Hutchison entered a London club of retired English generals.

Actually Mr. Chen is a retired Chinese general whose mild outer aspect hides a tough character, great abilities and a brave man's haunting fears.

He had spent a hard day in the Legislative Yuan and seemed glad to relax in an easy chair with a cigarette offering me tea pastries.

FOR BATTLE DURING SESSION

Liberals Pick Targets

Ottawa (CP) — A many-sided attack on the government will be fired by the Liberals at the coming session of Parliament.

Trade, defence, financial policy and immigration matters appeared to be the ones on which the main opposition party will concentrate most.

SHARPSHOOTING

In addition, there will be some sharpshooting at Prime Minister Diefenbaker's bill of human rights, with the Liberals probably not objecting to it in principle but making suggestions for changes.

Some of the main actions of the official opposition, as developed in talks Friday with party sources, may be:

INVESTIGATION

Defence: A demand for some form of investigation into Canada's national defence policy, possibly by a Parliamentary committee that could keep secrets away from the Russians by the unusual procedure of holding some sittings behind closed doors.

Trade: The government will spiced meat and sweet cakes.

I began with an obvious question:

Would the Peking regime ever mellow to the point where the free world could make a peaceful settlement with it?

The possibility," Mr. Chen replied crisply through his interpreter, "is very small."

What about Mr. Khrushchev's peace offensive?

"Only his method changes, never his purpose."

Was it true, as I had heard in the teeming rumor factory of Tokyo, that Peking had lately made secret overtures to Taiwan?

Mr. Chen answered with a jovial British laugh. "Of course," he said, "they are always sending out feelers. But we pay no attention."

Yes, the Communists were in deep trouble through their economic mismanagement at the summit.

They are ferocious and chilling and they isolate at once the critical new problem created for Taiwan by the current manoeuvres of the world's great powers. Clearly Taiwan is terrified by the doctrine of co-existence and the possibility of the West falling into a Communist trap at the summit.

Fluoride By Force Flayed

By HAL MALONE

Business, civic and government spokesmen today threw cold water on a plan to take fluoridation of water supplies out of the hands of voters and give public health authorities power to implement the anti-tooth decay measure.

Surprise and consternation were among the reactions of public officials to the proposal advanced Friday by Eric Mallett, chairman of the civic affairs group, Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Mallett told Chamber directors his group would shortly ask them to consider a proposal calling for provincial legislation to be amended so public health authorities could "if in their wisdom they felt it was in the public good and interest" proceed with fluoridation.

"I am inclined to think," said Mr. Mallett, "that an issue such as fluoridation should not be put to a vote."

His proposal, coming less than 24 hours after voters in three Greater Victoria municipalities had vetoed fluoridation, drew bristling and immediate comments.

"Oh, boy! Oh no," said Mayor Percy Scurrish. "That is contrary to all democratic principles. When the people have voted against something, to force it on them it just isn't done."

'Lot of Harm—Sticking Its Neck Out'

Other comments:

Health Minister Eric Martin: "I'm surprised to hear a suggestion like that."

"All I need say is that we live in a democracy, not a dictatorship."

Oak Bay reeve George Murdoch: "The Chamber of Commerce is doing a lot of harm sticking its neck out when it has no business to do so. The Chamber should concern itself with matters of commerce and not interfere in local government. We work to preserve the freedom our forefathers fought for through the years. As this subject stands why not send Mr. K a telegram and tell him to take over?"

Saipach Reeve George Chattoner: "I don't agree with Mr. Mallett. I don't think the question of fluoridation is important enough. There is no necessity for such drastic action. It is not a question of life and death."

Mrs. Lydia Arsenis, anti-fluoridation spokesman: "Mr. Mallett is guilty of the height of audacity in making such a suggestion after fluoridation was so soundly defeated in Greater Victoria. What he proposes is nothing less than dictatorship."

"As this subject stands why

'In Time People Will Accept It'

Less caustic was Attorney-General Robert Bonner: "I think there's a far stronger case for compulsory vaccination."

"In time I think people will come to accept fluoridation voluntarily."

"I don't believe this issue should be forced on the public. After all this was the first vote on the matter in Greater Victoria. I believe, following a period of education, the people will accept fluoridation."

Public Apathy Blamed for Defeat

He attributed public apathy at the polls to the defeat of fluoridation.

"I think," he said, "if the people had got out in large numbers we would have had a pro-fluoridation vote."

"One of the tragedies of the voting was the apathy of the public. Saanich, where only 28 per cent of the electorate voted, is an example."

"If we're not going to preserve our franchises we're in trouble."

Mr. Mallett said that in the past governments have taken action on issues in the public interest.

"We're not allowed to vote when the government buys a battleship or if our sons sent to war."

The most disturbing aspect of the Greater Victoria fluoridation vote was the fact that "every public health authority feels fluoridation is in the public interest."

Mr. and Mrs. P. Leonas . . . all smiles.

FAMILY REUNITED

Soviet 'St. Nik' Keeps a Promise

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ginas and Tomas Leonas will spend Christmas in Chicago — because Nikita Khrushchev kept a promise.

Actually, they may not arrive here by Dec. 25. "But when they come, that will be Christmas," their breathlessly happy mother said. "If they are here for Christmas, it will be double Christmas."

It's been 15 years since Paulius and Elena Leonas, both 42, last saw their daughter and son, Ginas and Tomas.

In that time they built a prosperous real estate business in Chicago while Ginas, now 20 and a librarian, and Tomas, 17 and a student, grew up behind the Iron Curtain.

Now the family will be reunited because the Soviet premier decided to play St. Nik and give the Leonases the finest Christmas present of their lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonas fled the Communist invasion of their native Lithuania in 1944, leaving their children with their parents. Tomas was a boy then and Ginas was only 4½.

They led a nomadic refugee life for nine years — three in Germany and six in Toronto. Then they came to Chicago, began their business and opened a campaign to win their children's release from Communist Lithuania.

Plea after plea was rejected and hope nearly had died when Khrushchev made his historic U.S. tour last summer.

The Leonases cornered the Russian premier in a Des Moines, Iowa, hotel lobby, poured out their story and made a tearful plea that their family be reunited.

Khrushchev patted Mrs. Leonas' hand and turned to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. "See to it," he said.

Gromyko saw to it. The U.S. Embassy in Moscow announced Friday that exit visas had been granted the Leonas children and they should be in Chicago by Christmas.

IN MONTREAL

Red Tape Cutting Brings Joy

Montreal (CP) — A Montreal couple waited hours in a deserted airline terminal today for their biggest Christmas present — the return of relatives from Russia.

Mrs. Lina Albins, her husband David, and their daughters, Dina, 18, and Ilana, 16, were at the end of more than a year of negotiations to bring back Mrs. Albins' parents.

Just after daybreak Moses Salomon and his wife, both in their 70s, stepped off the aircraft that brought them from Europe and were hugged by the daughter they had not seen since war separated them in 1940. They had their first look at their grandchildren.

The reunion was made possible through some red tape cutting by both Russian and Canadian government officials.

Prosecutor Peter Butler said the cards are needed by police to show the extensiveness of the operation and because they are under investigation as a possible lottery.

Mr. Montgomery said the scheme is still in operation at the firm's stores, and "we are convinced it is legal." He said similar cards would be given to police for their investigation. Customers stand to win anything from $1 to $1,000 on the cards, the firm says.

Did One Man Survive Desert Ordeal?

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI)

Sudanese police today held a man who identified himself as "Anthony Parkhouse" in the belief he may be the lone survivor of a group of five men who set out across the Nubian Desert last July.

Police believed the man calling himself Parkhouse was really Donald Shannon, of Milwaukee, one of two American students in the party that included two French students and a Nubian guide.

They have asked Shannon's family for pictures to identify him.

One of the Americans, the Frenchman and the guide died in the vast wastes of the Nubian desert on the borders of Egypt and the Sudan.

Egyptian police reported there was evidence where the bodies were found that "a grueling battle" had taken place among the men for the party's dwindling water supply.

The guide was said to have been "murdered."

All the bodies were identified, and tracks at the death scene indicated Shannon had set out across the desert, limping on a stick. The dead American was identified as John Armstrong of Belleville, N.J.

Police here said "Parkhouse" was arrested as he tried to cross the southern Sudan border into Kenya without a passport.

"Parkhouse" told authorities he had lost his passport but was a Briton, born in London in 1931 and now a Cape Town merchant. He refused to see personnel from British and U.S. embassies.

Officials here said "Parkhouse" closely resembled a man identified as Shannon in Cairo newspapers but they needed clear photographs to establish this point. They said Shannon's family in Milwaukee was being asked to forward photographs of him.

Parkhouse said he had come to the Sudan from Malta.

The bodies of four members of the doomed desert expedition party were found in October. At that time, Egyptian officials closed the case.

The Price of Gas

TWO COMPANIES ARE NOW seeking authority to bring natural gas by pipeline under the Strait of Georgia to Vancouver Island. The financial details of their plans are complicated. But it seems apparent that whoever is successful, the installation of the line will be costly.

That is calculated to make the product relatively expensive. And the cost, whatever it is, ultimately will be passed on by the distributor to the community directly in rates or possibly disguised by an indirect subsidy.

Dr. H. L. Purdy, executive vice-president of the B.C. Electric, has informed the Public Utilities Commission that if his company bought natural gas at 60 cents per thousand cubic feet at a gate in Central Saanich, or some equivalent location, the company could offer service to Greater Victoria at a competitive price allowing for development of the market.

The 60-cent figure seems high—considerably higher than the comparable rate computed by the B.C. Electric for gas delivered to it through the Huntington gate for distribution in Vancouver. Load factors and other technical elements enter into the price, but the company sets 47 cents per thousand cubic feet as the mainland figure which can be compared most suitably to the 60 cents cited by Dr. Purdy.

The company realizes that it has followed the official line that electricity rates are high here because costs of production and transmission are high.

This argument seems to provide further reason against saddling excessive gas costs on power.

Were that policy to be followed the community would be burdened indefinitely by high cost electricity and high cost gas; however the costs were disguised.

Wage War Cry in Panama

THE WORLD HAS HEARD OF recent anti-American rioting in the Panama Canal Zone. Now some of the facts behind the disturbances are beginning to emerge.

In most countries the violent expression of antipathy for the United States by Panamanians is taken as another indication of rising nationalism. In a sense, it is, but nationalism with a special twist.

The people of Panama have been encouraged by some agitators to assume that their country's national aspirations are in fact underwritten in treaties with the United States. In many cases this is false, nowhere more notably than on the question of pay rates for Panamanians working in the Canal Zone.

The United States is charged with wage discrimination against the natives. Actually the United States follows a policy of paying for jobs that can be filled by local recruitment on the basis of wages prevailing in Panama. For positions requiring United States recruitment—because there are few or no Panamanians trained for them—United States standards are observed. But where a Panamanian citizen holds the necessary qualifications and is given one of the senior jobs, he also is paid on the United States scale.

This does not stop the people of Panama from citing the difference between $150 a month earned by the average Panamanian in the Canal Zone and the average $600 a month earned by the American. But the pay is for different jobs and the differential would doubtless exist anywhere.

While the United States authorities are charged with discrimination against Panama citizens working in the Canal Zone, a comparison of wages in the Zone and in the Panama Republic is interesting. The minimum paid by authorities in the Canal Zone is 56 cents an hour, and that for beginners who quickly work up to a higher scale. Only in October did Panama City and Colon raise their minimum wage to 40 cents an hour and elsewhere in the Republic 25 cents an hour is not exceptional.

In February of this year a single wage scale was adopted in the Canal Zone for both Panamanian and United States workers—equal pay for the same job. The action has not yet stilled the cry of discrimination, which is an exceedingly useful device for the ultra-nationalist politician.

A Disappointing Interview

THE TELEVISION INTERVIEW between Sir Anthony Eden and Mr. Blair Fraser, broadcast by the CBC this week, is notable mainly for what it left unsaid.

At a crucial juncture of the telecast—when Mr. Fraser had asked Sir Anthony why he had not advised other Commonwealth countries before launching the ill-starred Suez attack—the show was interrupted—and the master of ceremonies explained that Sir Anthony did not want to comment further on the matter.

Thus the aspect of Suez most intriguing to Canadians was left unanswered.

Earlier, in what professional actors describe as a "throw-away" line, Sir Anthony had expressed gratitude to Canada for its role in his forthcoming book.

Regulation From Within

MOST THINKING PERSONS will agree with Pope John in his recent criticism of some sections of the world press. In a recent comment he said: "It is not love of knowledge, culture or truth that guides some pens, but the immature yearning for notoriety and profit that passes over the irresponsible appeals of conscience."

Excessive sensationalism and the so-called gutter press have long been deplored by responsible newspapers of all countries. There can be no argument that in many cases the press adds little to the knowledge or the dignity of readers.

It is with the Pope's suggested method of reform that reputable journals will take issue. He proposes that "some necessary limitations be placed upon the freedom of the press."

That is a form of control which the press cannot accept. The purpose is worthy but the means are so open to abuse—as history has proved—that they are not practicable. No outside authority can safely be trusted with the power to say what the press shall or shall not publish, apart from a reasonable regard for libel and obscenity. Establishment of this principle has been achieved by a long struggle over the years and it will not be relinquished, even though in some countries—such as in Argentina under dictator Peron—it has been violated from time to time.

The proper improvement of the press must come from within. There must be self regulation, based on sound ethical and reporting practices, coupled with a demand from an educated public for news devoid of smut. In that education the church should play an important part.

As Our Readers See It

Pensions and Taxes

With reference to Mr. Macnicol's letter concerning my stand re taxes on the homes of old age pensioners who find themselves in great need: The suggestion is this, that the taxes of such people be permitted to accumulate against the title at 6 per cent simple interest, to be paid eventually from the estate. The intention was to aid only those whose next step would be public welfare, to save their self respect, to leave them in homes they have, where they could enjoy to some small extent their remaining years.

This is a problem which will have to be met and it is my feeling that a small amount of assistance would be worth a lot of welfare."

Inviting High Blood Pressure

Reference to the "Dog Hater" letter in a recent Times: Can it be possible such vicious characters really exist? Such a hateful disposition, couldn't have anything else but "high blood pressure." He or she evidently never owned a dog and doesn't know the loyalty of a dumb creature, so we will excuse the attitude. What a horrible frame of mind and especially to express it at this Christmas season when all are supposed to have "goodwill."

God made the dumb animals for a purpose and we that are supposed to be of higher intelligence and understanding are supposed to treat His creatures with kindness.

Visit to India: After the Cheers, Something Concrete

THE Asian part of the President's trip has now been completed, and there is good ground for saying that he has reason to feel that his bold adventure turned out very well indeed. It looks now as if it will prove to have been not only a demonstration of good will but an event which marks a turning point in contemporary affairs. The event, if I am seeing straight, is that he has brought into a new perspective our relationship with Asian affairs.

The central objective of the President's trip was quite evidently to reach an understanding with India. This new relationship is in no sense a military alliance. It is a normal partnership based on a recognition of the fact that the survival and progress of India is of crucial importance to us and to the peace of the world.

It was no accident that the President spent five days in India, and made only brief stops in Turkey, Pakistan, and Iran. For in India he was seeking the basis of an understanding with a huge

FROM OTTAWA

The Party Mass Meetings Provide Fun and Reassurance

THERE was sharp contrast between the recent Liberal and Progressive Conservative conventions in the capital city. The Tories were riding high. They met in a buoyant mood.

They poked fun at one another and even at their leader, the Prime Minister. The Liberals were more serious.

They realize they have a big job ahead if they are to catch up with the Conservatives and perhaps knock them out of office. There was not the same hilarity among the Grits.

But they ended their sessions with a pep talk from their leader Mike Pearson that had some of them convinced they had a chance to romp home in the next election race.

Spoof

That the Conservatives were able to spoof one another and their key people was a sign of their cocky confidence, a confidence that comes from having 208 members in the House of Commons with its total of 265 M.P.s.

The Conservative members from the Maritimes enjoyed themselves. They handed out an award to the "outstandcountry which has remained unaligned in the cold war.

In Turkey, Pakistan, and Iran his task was merely to reassure these allied governments that in making a new friend and partner in India, he was not abandoning our old friends and partners.

About his enormous reception in India, it is useful, I think, to bear in mind that it reflects a change in the mood of India and in the attitude of the United States. There is no doubt that Gen. Eisenhower has magic in the presence of crowds.

But we would be missing the point, I believe, if we described his reception in India as a triumph of propaganda and public relations. The Eisenhower magic, like most magic I suppose, works best when the situation has been made favorable to it.

On the Indian side, there is a new mood, first, because of the Chinese aggression, and second, because India is on the threshold of an heroic attempt to break out of its immemorial poverty and backwardness.

On both counts, the United States is a very desirable friend. This has become most especially the case, I should add, since the President, in working for an accommodation with the Soviet Union, has made it unnecessary for India to choose sides in the cold war.

Because the Indians can now be America's close friends without lining themselves up as the adversaries of the Soviet Union; they have been liberated from what has been for them a horrid dilemma.

The new mood in India has its counterpart in the new attitude which the President has taken in U.S. dealings with India. To understand, to respect, and indeed to approve of Indian neutrality is a change in the American attitude for which President Eisenhower is personally responsible.

But we would be missing the point, I believe, if we described his reception in India as a triumph of propaganda and public relations. The Eisenhower magic, like most magic I suppose, works best when the situation has been made favorable to it.

The Indian government knows this and the Indian people have had it communicated to them. The Indians are a sensitive people and they have long memories. They have not forgotten the arrogance and scorn with which Nehru was treated by the Secretary of State during his visit here ten years ago. Nor have they forgotten that the next Secretary of State characterized their neutral policy as immoral.

Nor have they failed to realize that President Eisenhower was quick to disavow the characterization and that it is he who is responsible for our new understanding of and sympathy with the effort of the young Indian republic to follow George Washington's injunction against entangling alliances.

The President's visit to India will have done much, I believe, to prepare the way among our own people for the big effort that must be made in the Western world to achieve an economic breakthrough in Asia. This constructive task should not be a purely American enterprise and responsibility.

The next step is to make a reliable estimate of what is needed, and how the funds are to be provided, and what the program is to be. Here the right step forward is now being taken.

There is to be an international commission, sponsored by the World Bank, which is to work out a program for the key area of South Asia, which consists of India and Pakistan.

There is, therefore, good reason to think that after the cheers of the Asian crowds have died away, there will still remain something concrete and substantial which will affect the future of Asia. If this is so, the President will have played a decisive part in bringing it about, and he will have deserved well of mankind.

ful and has won the ear of the Prime Minister.

There are those among the Tories who are jealous of his influence. He planned the extension of voting control within the party from 200 old-line Tories to 1,450 representatives. The plan had some opposition but it passed the convention without too much trouble. The convention agreed to hold another mass meeting of the party faithful in a year's time. So did the Liberals.

Mr. Diefenbaker had sung the praises of his aide Mr. Grosart. The Liberals denounced the man. He came under their heavy fire right at the outset of the Liberal meetings. He was accused of operating a propaganda machine.

Said Mr. Pickersgill, "We are faced with the greatest propaganda machine in the history of Canadian politics, the most efficient, most expensive, most unscrupulous machine... and I do not exclude the machine of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis."

A Conservative pamphlet entitled "Here are the Facts" distributed at the Tory convention aroused the Liberals' ire. They did a fast job and issued their own publication, correcting the "Tory facts." It was a smooth efficient piece of counter propaganda.

Award

The Conservatives had fun pulling an opponent's leg when they presented the General Nasser Travelling Fellowship (good only in the Suez zone). It went to the Maritimian who had contributed most to the success of the Conservative Party. Who won the award?

Why that well known member of the Liberal opposition Hon. J. W. Pickersgill—but he was not on hand to receive it.

Fun

The Conservatives had another award for a Liberal. The Donald M. Fleming Political Science Award made "for the greatest contribution to political science and the most lucid explanation of government fiscal policy." It was presented to Liberal Senator Wishart Robertson.

Like Mr. Pickersgill, Mr. Robertson had not checked into the Tory convention and consequently was not there to pick up his prize. Undoubtedly he won

Work

But the Tories, like the Grits, had their work sessions. They heard Mr. Diefenbaker recall how the Liberals had said their party ran into difficulty because the "brass lost touch with the grass." The Prime Minister cautioned the Conservatives against making the same mistakes.

The delegates heard Allister Grosart, the party's national director and key organizational man, brag that the Conservatives could do better in the next election. They loved him for it.

They heard the Prime Minister praise Mr. Grosart. He told the organization that Mr. Grosart could be proud "as long as we can persuade you to stay."

This praise was deliberately delivered to answer the critics in the Conservative party who don't agree with the Grosart techniques of vote getting.

Spencer's Art: What War Means to the Combatant Soldier

ABOUT this time of the year eighteen years ago I was taking part in a corps attack northwards across the Thames. Our corps commander, an energetic little man of prodigious skill but negligible tact, was busy making for himself a name that has since resounded far beyond the downland lanes of Berkshire which were the setting for this particular clash between the forces of Blueland and Redland. In his ingenious and fast-moving plan, General Montgomery—who else?—had assigned us the task of seizing the heights above Newbury, what time some other weary and dedicated band pushed through us to capture the river-crossings about Wallingford and Goring.

Our task completed during the hours of darkness, afeat of no great difficulty since the position was occupied by a mere handful of incurious sheep—we addressed ourselves to the immediate pursuits of the British soldier:

Awaking refreshed, I went for a stroll through the grounds of the large house in whose outbuildings we had set up our headquarters, and was pausing in front of a large brick edifice of undeniably ecclesiastical stamp when a man emerged and asked if I would like to see the pictures.

Inside, I saw that this was a private chapel—a fact not in itself worthy of remark since many of the large houses of Britain have their own chapels; but this one was out of the ordinary, by virtue of the astonishing decorations which covered the walls.

One look, and I suddenly realized where I was. The name "Burghclere," which had borne a faintly familiar look on the map, suddenly assumed other and quite different proportions as I gazed at these murals.

On the east wall, about twenty feet by eighteen, was a gigantic "Resurrection," which depicted scores of British soldiers in shorts and puttees arising from their graves. With a casual air they were piling their crosses in a vast skeletal jumble before wandering off towards the Celestial City, for all the world as if this sort of thing happened every day.

On the side walls were smaller studies of soldiers resting on a route march, soldiers taking a

Chummy Banking

LONDON — When I went into the local branch of one of the big banks I was conscious that something was different. Then I realized that all the grills had been taken away and the counters were wide open, as in a shop.

This, in England, is a strange sight. Traditionally bank staffs have been enclosed in masses of grill-work.

"Why the change?" I asked Mr. Pays. (Wonderful name for a cashier. Some people don't believe it when they come into the bank and see his name plate on the counter—E. Pays.)

"It's the new head office policy," he said. "They feel it's better to have more personal contact between customers and staff."

"But what about the protection of the grill, against somebody who wants to do a grab?" I asked.

Mr. Pays shrugged his shoulders. "Feeling is that it doesn't mean very much."

I checked with the head office of his bank and with the other main banks and learned that it won't be long before grillwork will be a thing of the past.

"It's just part of the modernization of banks in this country," I was told. "Over the years we've learned that all the grill really does is put up a barrier between customer and cashier. Now they can have a much more chummy association."

It seems that the danger of snatch-thieves is not a very important consideration in this country. Unlike North America, crooks here don't go in very much for going into a bank with a gun, it's a pickup, hand over all your money. In Britain's 10,000 branch banks this happens on average barely six times a year.

Any crook worth his salt knows that a cashier is likely to have in his till merely something between $280 and $560. If you do all the cashiers along the counter you might raise $2,800 or so. But to do that you'd have to have pals in on it, since it becomes a bigger operation. And these pals want their cut, so you wind up at best only with a few hundred dollars.

Far better to operate away from the bank —snatch a payroll, then you're dealing in thousands, a much bigger haul.

PROFESSORS INFLUENCED BY BOSSES?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The appointment of professors from the University of B.C. as chairmen of conciliation boards was attacked Friday by president Fred Fleber of the 5,000-member Local 1-71, International Woodworkers of America (CLC).

Mr. Fleber told the local's annual convention the professors are subject to employer influence because they must protect the university's interest.

Mr. Fleber also accused Labor Minister Wicks of not giving a free hand to conciliation officers in the labor relations department.

"On paper it may appear that they are able to use their own judgment," he said. "In actual fact, this is not so."

BIAS CHARGED IN GOV'T-SUPERVISED BALLOTS

'IWA Can Conduct Own Strike Vote'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia coast loggers voted Friday to seek abolition of the government-supervised strike vote, a new conciliation procedure and income tax deductions for travelling and lodging expenses.

Secretary Fred Fleber of International Woodworkers of America (CLC) Local 1-71 told the loggers' local two-day convention government strike votes should be abolished because returning officers in some areas have shown anti-union bias in conducting ballots.

"The IWA is responsible enough to conduct its own strike votes," he told the 80 delegates.

The local decided to seek a new conciliation procedure under which there would be direct negotiations lasting no more than 10 days, followed by appointment of an independent mediator. A union strike vote would follow if the mediator's efforts failed.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

"BUT YOU NEVER TELL us anything about being a writer," says a young woman who addresses me by mail, more in sorrow than in anger; "why call it a Writer's Diary when it is all comment about the writing of other people?"

Well, my dear, I'll tell you a secret: when I write about myself, people send me letters telling me not to be vain, and making it clear that they are not a bit interested in me or my affairs; and when I write about books, I get letters like yours. However, you have asked for some comment on what it is like to be a writer, and I shall tell you.

I have just finished writing a book. It took me eighteen months to complete it. This included writing; typing of the first draft; revision of first draft; typing of completed book; and revision of that.

There had to be six copies of the final piece of work, two of them on heavy paper and four on onion-skin. Four of these had to go to New York. Last week I took them in a briefcase and they weighed exactly fifteen pounds. The book contained approximately 105,000 words.

In all of this the gifted lady who types my MSS made only five errors, all of which were subsequently corrected.

Author's Case Is One of 'Willy-Nilly'

In intervals of writing the book, I wrote a play, took it to Ireland to see the man who will direct it, and revised the draft while staying with him. A play runs to about 40,000 words, but, of course, they are not just any old words.

In addition to these jobs, I carried on my normal work, which involves writing a great many words, as well.

"He writes far too much," I hear the wiseacres say. How true; how poignantly true! But an author is like a horse pulling a coal-cart down an icy hill; he ought to stop, but when he reflects that it would probably kill him to try, he goes right on, neighing and rolling his eyes.

What did I do in New York? I gave the fifteen pounds of typescript to my agent, and then went to lunch with him. This is one of the nicest parts of authorship. He sent the book around to the publisher,

Foreign Films and Shop Windows

What else did I do in New York? I saw three remarkable films. The second part of "Ivan the Terrible" is a kind of opera without music, in which everybody acts tremendously, and although I was impressed, I could not help noticing the crudity of the technique; people's heads kept disappearing through the top of the picture, Ivan's built-up shoes were plainly to be seen, and he never seemed to have his beard stuck on in quite the same place. And, as so often in these epics, one felt that a very small amount of common sense could have avoided all that killing and shouting.

The other two films were Swedish—"Wild Strawberries" and "The Magician," both directed by Ingmar Bergman, who is a genius of a high order.

The Swedish language, to my ignorant ear, is musical but oddly pucker, as though everybody has been sucking lemons. (I once knew a Swede who said that to her countrymen all English speech sounded like weary complaint.) But by reading the English translation at the bottom of the pictures I got a rough idea of the dialogue; like most such translations it seemed to have been done by somebody with no idea of the nuances of English usage.

"The Magician," I think, is quite the most remarkable film I have ever seen, and I sat through it twice, enchanted.

What else? Oh, I stared in the shop windows, and saw a doll's trunk at Schwarz's which was prettily decorated with old theatrical prints, of considerable charm and some rarity. Its price was $300, and I had a brief vision of an over privileged child, stuffed to nausea with chocolates, picking the pictures off it in strips on Christmas morning.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Chaotic Vision Reveals Image of an Ugly World

One of the very first articles I ever published, written at an age when I had much more hair on my head than I have now, was for the Association of Cine Technicians and was titled, beautifully and simply, A Criticism of Critics. Incidentally, it's a title I've come across ad nauseam through the intervening years; but in those days, and for reasons now lost, I thought I was being very direct and outspoken.

Nor can I recall anything about the article beyond its title, though I can tell you now, in full confidence, that it must have been extremely silly, not only in content, but in approach. Now a day's I know better than to criticize a critic.

I regard all members of the fraternity as sadly forlorn creatures, afraid of walking along dark streets, frightened out of their wits by a friendly smile (what's the fellow want, I wonder?) and just about as functional as an advertising blurb on a package of soap powder.

So when I received last week a copy of a new, Bostonian publication "Critical: A Review of Art and Criticism," the first number of which appeared in November, I recognized, shall we say, an old and disrespected friend.

Added Egg

The magazine, if one can call it such, has as its leading article a commentary by a certain Theodore L. Shaw entitled "The Metropolitan Lays an Egg."

I will spare you a précis of the article, and only mention that it is not the Met's egg which is added, but Mr. Shaw. At heart he is a pamphleteer and his previous authorship has resulted in such works as the following: "Critical Quackery," "Precious Rubbish," "War on Critics," "The Absurdities of Criticism," "Art Is a Giant Drug Store" and "The Hypocrisies of Criticism."

Obviously, ignoring the fact that he himself is super-critic, Theodore Shaw is cutting a very uncomfortable seat from which to survey any criticism, quack or gilt-edged.

Reviewing Mr. Shaw's first book, Leland H. Chambers of Michigan University writes:

"My opinion of Critical Quackery is that it's a lousy book. I never saw anywhere a more one-sided expression of half-baked logic, generalizations, lies, stretched and shattered analogies, underhanded name-calling and mean-minded backbiting. Mr. Shaw's techniques are those of a broken-down Westbrook Pegler . . ."

Liaison Officer

What, to me, is far more irritating is the knowledge that Mr. Shaw is not the first, nor will he be the last.

In my reference library I keep a copy of an even more deterrent publication, issued at the author's expense in not one but three languages, and supplied, without request, to poor blokes like myself who have the appointed duty of acting as liaison officer between artist, semi-artist and well-wishing public.

This week's report to the public, for example, concerns an Exhibition of Paintings by Phyllis Leecce, on view at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria (till Dec. 23).

About 18 months ago Phyllis Leecce exhibited in one of the Jury shows two quite outstanding works for such an exhibition, one of which "The Model," I can recall clearly to this day.

In her present exhibition, there is another such painting, which is original, hauntingly weird and of individual vision. The scene, an old man about to set out on his journey into the Unknown, watched by a Rabbi who waits as guardian and comforter at the bedside, is arresting for literary as well as painterly qualities.

The entire scene is bathed with a warm luminosity, and for once Phyllis Leecce gives us brushwork both exacting and rich. The composition is nicely balanced and somewhere in the work there is a person or group interested in obtaining more detailed information concerning the winter art series are asked to write the Extension Department, University of British Columbia.

Playing the role of the "travelling painter" will be well-known Vancouver artist, Molly Bobak.

For three-month period beginning in January, 1960, Mrs. Bobak will give painting instruction and lectures on art to groups of adult students in various towns in the province.

A former student of the Vancouver School of Art, she has exhibited in several Canadian cities and is represented in the National Gallery, the Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria art galleries and the Modern Museum in Halifax, Israel.

During the war Mrs. Bobak served with the Canadian Women's Army Corps in the United Kingdom, Holland, Belgium and Germany as an official Canadian war artist. From 1950-51 she studied in Paris on a French government scholarship.

Gullibility Provides Theme For Tale of Two Hoaxes

THE LADY AND THE GIANT

By Clarence Budington Kelland. Dodd, Mead & Company (Canada) Ltd. $4.00

A great stone statue was dug up on Stubby Newell's farm at Cardiff, near Syracuse in 1865. This discovery set off a storm of controversy, with expert opinions right, left and centre claiming it as a petrified man, a Phoenician statue, and a bare-faced hoax.

Press-agency must have been a good deal easier in those days, as the papers lapped it up, and the public, at fifty cents, and later a dollar, flock to all over and made happy men of the owners.

name-dropping, and by the judicious use of an implied relationship to the great financier Daniel Drew, created an aura of wealth and respectability.

The fact that it was a hoax never did seem to become too well understood, and for whatever reason, the public paid handsomely to see it for quite some time as it toured the country.

Even Barnum got into the act; first by trying to buy the Giant, and later by exhibiting a copy in his New York museum, loudly claiming it as the original.

The history of the Giant parallels somewhat the progress of the Lady, beautiful and talented Madame Janeway, who took Syracuse by storm at the time the Giant was discovered.

THESE THREE BLONDE CHARMERS are preparing for Christmas by practicing carols. Their favorite? Why "Partridge In a Pear Tree," of course. Mama, Cheri, has been bent on an artistic career since she learned one of her puppies was presented to ballet star Ulanova. Twin daughters are Binnie and Minnie who promise to be pretty fair virtuosos on their own account.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

Well, the time has come again to say "Merry Christmas." And I do say it with all my heart, to all within sight and sound of these words, but with a special touch of tinsel to some who have given me moments to treasure during the past year.

From people like Mayor Scurrah, who has said in effect, "Come on, fellows, let's get the auditorium built," to organizations like the Musical Art Society which is faithful to its ideal of developing the musical potential within the city walls.

Best sugarplums in the basket to rare people like Dorothy Evans who presides, magician-like, over the admirable Victoria Schools Symphony Orchestra—Long may she reign!

Also with appreciation, to Hans Gruber for getting solidly behind Canadian artists and for his leadership that has brought the Victoria Symphony to Canada-wide recognition. And incidentally, to all those who have served the orchestra loyally and wisely, throughout the years, so contributing toward its present status.

Perhaps it seems pretty hackneyed to write a column on the "Merry Christmas" theme, but when else during the year does a critic get such a chance to appear publicly, not as a pickle-pussed niggling nagger, but a person of pure goodwill.

Besides it appears to me that wishing "Merry Christmas"—trite though it may be, is one of the few, sincere, simple and wholesome privileges we have preserved from less sophisticated times.

That is why I can say it without blushing and right heartily.

May all your Christmas stockings yield up large dollops of good fortune for 1960.

TWO TALENTED TONY'S are dominating The Scene, 1306 Wharf Street, this weekend. They are Victoria College Professor and Times columnist, Tony Emery, who will read poetry with jazz accompaniment, and Tony Nicholson, starring in a one-act drama. The play is a presentation of Intimate Stage. Both forms of entertainment have found favor with Scene patrons.

New Look for DDF; Eight-Zone System

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's little theatre groups from coast to coast want instruction at the director's level and voice training.

That's the finding of Richard MacDonald, national director of the Dominion Drama Festival, who toured Canada for the festival and the Canada Council.

From Aug. 29 to Dec. 4 he travelled 5,000 miles visiting more than 250 drama organizations "from church groups up."

Two years ago the Dominion Drama Festival applied to the Canada Council for funds to finance a travelling instructor of top calibre to improve the standards of the non-professional theatre in Canada.

SENT TO COMMITTEE

The matter was referred back to the festival committee for further study.

AA (Under Class) B (For Rainy Days)
A (Don't Miss) BB (Worthwhile)

C (To Put in Time)

(A) "A PRIVATE'S AFFAIR" (Capitol): Warning! The high rating is aimed directly at the teen-age crowd plus all those who enjoy wacky comedy spiced with the strong essence of cleverness.

But to enjoy it, Man, you gotta believe. You simply gotta.

The story starts off with three young men from three widely diversified areas of the U.S. receiving their draft calls on the same day. They duly meet and become buddies.

They are beatnik-type Sal Mineo, recent college graduate Barry Coe, and Gary Crosby, the playboy son of an Oregon cattle-empire owner. Although to the army they may be hicks right off the bat they show they are no mean hand with the chicks—Terry Moore for Mineo, Christine Carere for Coe and Barbara Eden for Crosby.

Complications—in addition to the normal army complications—arise when the three lads are chosen for Jim Backus' all-Army show. First Coe comes down with laryngitis and inadvertently becomes married to female assistant secretary to the army Jessie Royce Landis.

Charm of "A Private's Affair," however, does not stem mainly from the plot but from the air of youth and hi-jinks that permeates Winston Miller's screenplay for 20th Century-Fox that is based on a story by Ray Livingston. De Luxe color on the wide-screen CinemaScope process adds to the gaiety.

ALL PRINCIPALS mentioned turn in good performances and the direction by Raoul Walsh is tight-reined and imaginative securing the most from those involved. One sour note might be Miss Moore. Not that she isn't seen to advantage, she is. But it seems rather sad that she should be found in this element at all. Only four or so years ago she proved in top-flight dramas that she was an actress of no ordinary capabilities.

On a more joyful note. Those seeing "A Private's Affair" may also see not one but TWO "Three Stooges" comedy shorts.

Imagine six stooges for the price of three!

ADMISSION TO 'AMAH'L BY CARD

Those planning to attend any of the three performances at Christ Church Cathedral, of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" (Dec. 28, 29 and 30) are reminded that cards of admission can now be picked up at Hudson's Bay Company ticket bureau, Kent's Ltd., Fort Street, or the Rylant Huntley Radio Lounge, Oak Bay Ave. Performances begin at 8 p.m.

Young Musicians Assist In Cathedral's 'Amahl'

A story about simple, kindly people, their wonder and joy in the presence of the "three kings of Orient," a lame boy and the miracle that occurs in a humble, Kroc's hut that lies bathed in the light of the Star of Bethlehem—these are the components that lead Italian-American composer Gian-Carlo Menotti to write the tender, moving, unsophisticated music of his one-act opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

It is, however, uniquely suited for the kind of presentation it is to receive in Victoria this Christmas season.

The place—Christ Church Cathedral—the dates, Dec. 28, 29 and 30 (and possibly Jan. 2)—the period of Epiphany.

SIMPLE SCORE

Some such sacred festival music was undoubtedly envisaged by the composer, for as well as the orchestral score he has provided scoring for two pianos and organ. This latter is the score being used in connection with the cathedral production. Richard Proudfit, cathedral organist and choirmaster and music director for the opera, is one-half of the duo piano team, the other half being St. Paul's Anglican Church organist, David Palmer. Assistant cathedral organist, Catherine Shore, will perform at the organ console.

PLAN CAREERS

David, at 15, and Catherine at 16, are two of the youngest church organists in Canada. David's story was told in Weekend a few months ago. He was actually appointed St. Paul's full-time organist at the age of 14. At the same time that he is making big strides as a pianist, as well as organist.

SIDELINE SLANTS

Doug Peden

The "Tiger" is back tonight, confident that his record will stand up for another season.

In unipenteen years of training athletes, Cecil Goldstick, professional trainer and amateur psychologist, who answers to the name of Tiger, will tell you he has never been with a team that missed the playoffs.

Now in his 10th season with Edmonton, Tiger might be expected to worry since coach Bud Poile's Flyers, stepping in against the Cougars at Memorial Arena tonite, are holding down fifth place in the Western Hockey League derby.

"The players have been hot and cold all season," says Goldstick, "but we'll be all right. We miss Oliver but the team is starting to click now and we're due for a winning streak."

Oliver, in case you haven't been reading the rave notices from the National Hockey League, is Murray Oliver, the youngster who went up to Detroit from the Flyers a few weeks ago and has been a sensation with the Red Wings. "I've seen a lot of good ones go up," Tiger said Friday, "but Murray is one of the best."

Goldstick was far from a stranger to Victoria sports fans during the war years. Colorful holder of the naval middle-weight crown, he performed in local rings and was connected with the Navy hockey and baseball clubs while stationed at Esquimalt.

There were a few memorable incidents while the Tiger was doing shore patrol duty—one involving a trip through a plate glass window—but he hasn't forgotten one of the nights he was featured on an amateur grappling card in the former Douglas Street cycling bowl. Before grunting was over, the fans erupted in a near-riot that brought a squad of gendarmes on the double. "That was quite a night," Goldstick recalls.

It's Not All Liniment and Bandages

Tiger will tell you that the life of a trainer is not just a matter of liniment, bandages and massage. During career that started before Hitler sent his boys goose-stepping into Poland, Goldstick has done just about everything from coaching to thawing frozen underwear to using psychology on his charges.

Although wrestling was his first love, Tiger found time in his teens to train midget hockey clubs in Edmonton and along the way he was trainer for two WHL clubs and a U.S. Hockey League squad, a football trainer, wrestling referee, manager of a woman wrestler, dabbled in sports writing and once tried his hand at radio with a program called the "Trainer's Forum."

"Hockey is the toughest sport," Tiger says, "even tougher than wrestling or football. I like it because it's our own sport and it's one of the best."

"You have to have brains as well as physical ability to be a good hockey player; stickhandling is an art in itself, and you have to be in top condition."

"I've never been with a team that hasn't made the play-offs," says the man who was with the Houston, Texas, Huskies when Toe Blake coached them to the USHL title and has helped the Flyers to one WHL crown.

"One night in Saskatoon," Tiger recalls, "it was 30 below. The dressing room was so cold that ice formed on the players' underwear. I finally got it thawed out and dried and we played that night."

Prescribed Cough Drop for Bronco

He also remembers when he took over coaching duties for New Westminster Royals in 1948 when coach Clarence Moher was ill. "We had a lot of injuries," Goldstick says, "but we beat Portland 4-2 and also won our next two games before Moher came back."

Tiger grins when he talks about Bronco Horvath, Boston's scoring expert.

"He was always worried about aches and pains, but most of it was psychological. One night when he complained about his back at the end of the first period, I gave him a cough drop. He went out and scored two goals."

Cecil has manipulated muscles of a flock of other stars who made it to the big time, including Glenn Hall, Vic Stasiuk, Johnny Bucyk, Len Lunde, Dutch Reibell, Gerry Melnyk and Billy McNeill.

"There's a lot of good ones in this league again this season," says the stocky 165-pounder, who has been admitting to 35 for several years. "We've been having our troubles but we'll be up there in time for the playoffs."

If the Flyers are going to keep Tiger's record intact, they could use a victory tonight. It's a big game for both the Cougars and the Flyers.

And if things get too tough along the road, Poile might be tempted to hand the coaching reins over to Goldstick. After all, the Tiger claims a perfect pro coaching record.

Pattersons Shooting At Fifth Straight Win

Patterson Construction will be shooting to make it five in a row when Commercial Hockey League teams move back into Memorial Arena Monday night.

Chased out of the building by bingo last Monday, the commercial leaguers will present their usual twin bill, in which Patterson tackle Vics at 9 p.m. and front-running Navy meets the Army squad in the 7:30 opener.

Only league club to deal out a defeat to the high-flying saviors this season, Pattersons are now four points behind Navy and four ahead of Vics and Army, deadlock in the third berth.

It will be a rubber match for Pattersons and Vics. Each club has one victory in two meetings this season.

Top-ranking welterweight contender Charley Scott starts to crumple from punch thrown by Benny "Kid" Paret, an unranked Cuban fighter, in televised bout at New York's Madison Square Garden Friday night. Knockdown came in 10th round and Paret, a 3-1 underdog, earned unanimous decision in 10-round to post one of major fistic upsets of year. (AP Wirephoto.)

Attendance Takes Dip In Inter-City League

Victoria Shamrocks maintained their perfect record as the best box-office club in the Intercity Lacrosse League during the 1959 season, but the Irish still had their poorest season in history at the gate.

Figures released Friday by league officials showed that the Rocks attracted 26,237 fans for 15 league games at Memorial Arena. It is the first time since the club stepped into the league in 1951 that the Irish have drawn less than 30,000 customers during the regular season.

League attendance also hit a new low for at least the past nine years with only 81,223 fans showing up for the 60 league tussles.

BIG DROP

That was a drop of more than 10,000 fans from 1958 and almost 30,000 below the figures recorded in 1951, the year Nanaimo and Victoria joined the loop, when 110,776 customers bought ICLL tickets.

Nanaimo posted a gain this season, showing 3,236 over last year and New Westminster added 751 to its fan total after making a big jump in 1957, the season Jack Blonda joined the club.

Shamrocks weren't alone in the decline department this year. Figures show that Vancouver dropped 9,478, more than double the decrease of 4,377 at the Irish gate.

And if things get too tough along the road, Poile might be tempted to hand the coaching reins over to Goldstick. After all, the Tiger claims a perfect pro coaching record.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Gals Learning More About He-Man Stuff

By DOUG PEDEN

Time marches on and changeth many things. Perhaps we should let braver souls try it first, but its beginning to look as if we can finally tell the truth without having to duck for cover when we arrive home with a new-hunting, fishing or boating gadget.

At least that's one indication coming out of the annual Christmas shopping madness.

In other Decembers, shrieks of indignant surprise could be expected just about every hour on the hour in sporting goods stores. They were broadcast by little ladies who came looking for "inexpensive" gifts to please males of the open spaces.

It was always a shocker to learn, for instance, that the fishing rod George said cost "about eight bucks" carried a label marked $27.50, or that Harvey's "five-dollar" salmon net was selling over the counter at $17.50. "Something's happened this year," the tackle shop salesman said yesterday after the cute little customer paid $22 for a reel without batting an eye. "It used to be that wgmnen wouldn't believe the stuff cost so much. Now only a few of them appear surprised at prices."

Perhaps it's because the boating boom has introduced more gals to outdoor recreation, or perhaps they've become resigned to the fact that even he-man stuff costs money in these days of rockets and shortening hemlines. Whatever the reason, its shaping up as one of the best-ever Yule seasons for the outdoor male.

Outdoor Males Are Easy to Please

And the ladies getting into a flap because the calendar shows only four more shopping days until you-know-when can relax. If the man in your life is an outdoor type, your worries are over. You can always find something to please him. I've never met an angler or hunter with everything he wanted.

Selecting something for an angler, hunter or boatman shouldn't be a difficult chore, providing you don't step into the high-price bracket. There are prices to suit every budget. You can shell out a bushel of greenbacks or spend a dollar on a useful item.

By this time, any sportsman worth his salt should have dropped a heavy hint of what he would like to see under the tree next Friday. But if he forgot, tread carefully before you shell out a big bundle of folding stuff, but don't let his mistake stop you.

All you have to do is to make sure that an expensive gift can be exchanged, if necessary. It always helps to do your buying from an experienced sporting goods dealer. He's a specialist and can help you choose good items as long as he knows their intended use. And, on the big day, assure your man that you understand why he may want to make a switch.

With less costly items such as fishing lures, duck decoys, ammunition, flashlights and boat cushions you can hardly go wrong.

Good Wool Shirts Are Always Useful

A gift that would please almost any fisherman is a light spinning reel that has good backbone and balance and retails at $7.50. A floating, wooden-handled fishing knife that sells at $2.95 is a handy gadget. It has a stainless steel blade that holds its edge and a scoop for cleaning out the blood line in a fish's innards.

Don't ignore clothing. Insulated underwear does wonders for comfort on a boat or in a duck blind. Any winter who travels or shoots around salt water should have a gun case. Top grade wool shirts are always useful and they last for years. Nobody ever has too many socks, which should be wool with nylon reinforcement.

That's only part of a huge selection. Skipping the more expensive items, here are a few other things which can help make a man's outdoor life more enjoyable:

DEER HUNTER—Clothing, compass, knife, ammunition, belt axe, sleeping bag, waterproof match case, binoculars, rifle case, cartridge belt, rifle-cleaning kit.

BIRD HUNTER—Clothing, waders, gun-cleaning kit, duck call, shells, decoys, gun case, hand trap and clay pigeons, vacuum bottle, flashlight.

SALMON FISHERMAN—Clothing, lures, large landing net, glass rod, monofilament-nylon line, trolling reel, tackle box, fisherman's pliers, sun glasses, rod holders, life jacket.

TROUT ANGLER—Clothing, fly box, flies, spinning kit, sun glasses, monofilament line, lures, landing net, creel, tapered fly line, creel.

CAMPER—Clothing, sleeping bag, axe, vacuum bottle, compact, portable ice box, camp stove.

BOATMAN—Non-skid shoes, clothing, nylon rope, safety-inflating jacket, heavy sweater, binoculars.

There are lots more, but the rest is up to you.

Happy shopping.

Fivepin Tourney Weekend Feature

By MICHAEL ROSE

Whatever you may think about Christmas, it never fails to appear at the same time each year and, for one reason or another, most city bowling leagues will be taking a two or three-week breather.

The break would seem to come at a good time since scores over the last two weeks have not been up to the pace set during October and November.

Unofficial windup to the pre-Christmas season will be the Island Fivepin tournament which started today at Esquimalt and will finish up Sunday at Capital and Gibson's.

Champion at Capital for the second week in a row was Reg Waggoner with 242.

Capital City's "Championship" bowling, incidentally, will resume Jan. 9.

Other high scorers in the fivepin loop were Cy Wallis 844, Al Staley 836, and W. Peterson with 822.

Top man of the tenpin trundlers at Gibson's was Herb Chandler who reported a 636 in the senior league. He was followed closely by Wilf Smith of the same league.

Shellac apparently gave more purchase to the ball and once a good bowler found a "line" he was able to rack up some pretty impressive totals.

If anyone else can remember high games which have so far gone unrecognized they are welcome to get in touch with me.

Merry Christmas.

Colts' Unitas Player of Year

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—

Baltimore's brilliant passing quarterback, Johnny Unitas, Friday was named the first recipient of the annual Bert Bell Memorial Award as the outstanding professional football player of the year.

Alvin Lowe of the juniors rolled 522 to top other keggers in the league and Joan White lead the ladies with 306.

Pre-Christmas standings of the Strathcona Senior League are:

Bel Air Cabinets, 33; Totem Grill, 26; Six-Mile House, 25; Strathcona Hotel, 25; James Bay Hotel, 15, and Tasty Spot, 11.

Some weeks ago in this column I mentioned that no officially-recognized 700 games had been bowled in tenpin play by Victoria keglers.

It turns out that this was a pretty rash statement, and longtime city bowler Harold Paulding was kind enough to set things straight.

He says that back in 1940 he and Wilf Johnston were both playing for the YMCA.

Dukes Came Dressed

GUELPH (CP)—Resplendent in rented white ties and tails, "the Dukes of Marlborough" received a regal reception Friday night at the Memorial Gardens.

The parade of pomp was in retaliation to Guelph coach Eddie Bush, who earlier this week said too many out-of-town teams arrived looking like "windbreakers bums."

Coach Turk Broda of Toronto Marlbros introduced his top-hatted players as "the best-dressed hockey team in the world." In return he received the keys to the city from Fred Garlick, an executive of the Guelph Chamber of Commerce.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Billy Martin, infielder obtained from Cleveland earlier this week in the deal which sent Johnny Temple to the Indians, Friday became the first Cincinnati Redleg to sign a 1960 contract.

Teamsters May Help Pros Get 'Protection'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Jack (Doe) Kearns is trying to organize an International Federation of Professional Sports, and he wants the help of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in lining up the membership.

What's more, he may get it. James Hoffa, Teamster president, says he is 100 per cent behind the idea.

"I'm all for it," Hoffa said decisively. "We'll go with him right down the line."

Kearns stresses he wants the benefit of the teamsters' know-how when it comes to organization.

"It's not for us," Kearns said. "It's the teamsters as a group. They have the organization setup which would help us."

HEAD BUZZING

Doc, spry as a cricket and with a head buzzing with ideas, has crowded several lifetimes into his 76 years, give or take a few years. His field of activity ranged from the Klondike during the gold rush to management of 11 ring champions, including Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker.

Right now he is co-manager of world, light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore, another venerable specimen of uncertain years whom Kearns quietly is trying to get a shot at Ingemansson's world heavyweight crown.

But he says that for two or three years he has been working on his idea of an international union for pro athletes, and pro workers in sports.

He has reached the point where he has mimeographed the aims of his embryo organization, and a list of possible members.

A MILLION MEMBERS

From this list Kearns says he will select an advisory group for the organization, which he claims has a membership potential of 1,016,464. All but 50,000 of these are itemized as active in 18 fields of sport, ranging from golf to skin diving and baseball to football coaches. The remaining 50,000 are members of 35 minor sports groups.

"These people need protection," the benevolent Doc insists. "Look at the 50,000 head and assistant coaches. They are always getting fired, and have no recourse."

In golf alone there are 600,000 potential members, including caddies, pros and groundkeepers. Some of them must rely on tips for a living.

"What protection does a young boxer have? He gets maybe $15 or $25 for a fight, and if he hurts a hand or something he can't even pay the doctor bills."

LABOR NEGOTIATIONS

The purpose of the union would be "to promote public interest in professional sports and to enhance the terms and conditions of employment of athletes and other working participants through the media of normal labor negotiations."

"I am satisfied," Kearns says, "that professional athletes can enjoy the security and dignity which they deserve only by associating themselves with a trade union."

U.S. Income Hit Record Last Month

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States economy this week showed ample evidence that it has shaken off the heaviest effects of the long steel strike.

These were major indicators:

1. The commerce department reported personal income hit an all-time peak in November.

2. Automobile production soared to a two-year high.

3. Steel output rocketed along at a record rate.

Personal income climbed to a rate of nearly $385,000,000,000 a year. This was $1,000,000,000 higher than the previous peak annual rate attained in pre-strike June.

WAGE LOSS

The steelworkers, who returned to work under the Taft-Hartley law for an 80-day cooling-off period, contributed $2,500,000,000 to the income total in November but the amount was partially offset by loss of $2,000,000,000 in wages in steel-short industries.

But there was a $750,000,000 increase in unemployment compensation cheques and other government payments, and smaller gains in several non-manufacturing industries, in state and local payrolls, in farm earnings and in income from dividends and interest.

The auto industry prodded its production to around 150,000 passenger cars, compared with 83,562 last week. In the corresponding week of 1958 the output was 135,961.

Steel production this week was estimated at a fraction lower than last week's record of 2,732,000 tons. Virtually all steel products are sold out for the first half of 1960.

RESUME NEGOTIATIONS

The government plans to resume its mediation efforts to settle the steel dispute next week after a week's lapse of meetings.

There was plenty of activity in the metals industry. Aluminum producers reached general agreement with the United Steelworkers on a new contract. Major producers increased the price of pig aluminum 1.3 cents to 26 cents a pound. The Kennecott Copper Corp. and the Mine-Mill union agreed on a settlement of a four-month strike.

The department of agriculture reported that crop production this year will match the record output of 1958. It will meet all expected needs and add to surplus supplies, particularly grains, the department said.

Boy of 16 Charged In Hit-Run

A 16-year-old Victoria boy was charged with careless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident shortly after a hit-run collision at Hillside and Quadra Friday at 7 p.m.

Police took Patricia Luzzi, 13, and her sister Gwen, four, of 780 Hillside, to Jubilee Hospital where they were examined and discharged.

Both girls suffered bruises when they were thrown to the pavement on impact with a car turning right to go south on Quadra. Witnesses said the car stopped, then sped away with two other motorists in pursuit.

Police said James Rolfe, 1199 Tattersall, and Robert Luscombe, 3237 Service, followed the hit-run car for seven blocks, cutting it off and stopping it at 728 Kings, where they held the driver until police arrived.

The juvenile driver was expected to appear at the regular sitting of juvenile court Wednesday.

Shoppers' Bus Passenger Load Picks Up Daily

Victoria's downtown shoppers' special bus experiment has not been the success sponsoring retail merchants hoped it would be but the daily passenger load is increasing gradually.

Roy Denny, chairman of the retail merchants' group, told Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday the bus has been carrying an average of 93 passengers a day. Peak daily load was 135.

Mr. Denny said mothers with small children have been attracted to the bus since the driver donned Santa Claus gear.

WINNING MODEL—Winner in a contest for a design for Winnipeg's proposed new city hall was this model of a two-storey centre, designed to fit a triangular area across the street from the Manitoba Legislative Building. Designers were the Winnipeg firm of Green Blankstein Russel and Associates who won $15,000 and contract to design the actual building. Cost is estimated at $6,000,000. The 10-storey glass-faced structure is to house offices; the adjacent two-storey building will accommodate departments dealing with the public. Five judges picked the winner from among six finalists. There were 91 original entries. (CP Photo.)

WEEK ON MARKETS

Expected Year-End Rally, Christmas Buying Missing

By GREG MACDONALD

Canadian stock markets this week wandered aimlessly but wound up the session slightly higher although the anticipated Christmas buying and year-end rally failed to materialize.

It was one of the dullest weeks in recent months. The average volume for the week was below the 2,000,000-share mark.

However, the trend of the markets during the last month has been upward and investors say any reaction during the next two weeks probably won't be severe enough to change the climb.

Motor stocks were the feature this week as all issues gained on resumption of full-scale production after lay-offs caused by the five-month U.S. steel strike. Steels, senior base metals, senior oils and pipelines also picked up the cue and were stronger at the week's end.

HIT BY TAX SELLING

Oil and gas issues, though, still are trying to recover from a wave of tax-selling in the United States which hit them pretty hard.

Tight money, that old regular which has hampered the market since the early part of 1958, is another reason for the hesitant mood of Canadian markets. Investors said they expect the current tight money will continue for sometime yet although it may not affect the market as much in 1960.

But with the traditional year-end rally well under way in New York and London, investors are expecting it to catch on the Canadian markets soon.

Coppers, currently one of the weakest of the base metals issues, are expected to rise. Long strikes in the United States have produced decided copper shortages and could become acute if the strikes continue.

SMALL GAINS

At Toronto, industrials went up almost two points, a far cry from last week's gain of more than eight points.

Golds were strong most of the week and gained slightly more than a point. McIntyre Porcupine, the only senior issue which has been a steady winner, showed a $3 gain at $92.50 during the week.

Base metals went up a few decimal points and western oils, which seem to be going nowhere in particular, lost nearly a point.

TELEPHONE 'HOGGER' FINED $210

MILLBURN, N.J. (AP)—Mrs. Peter Zelinski was found guilty Friday of refusing to yield a party telephone for emergency medical purposes. Magistrate Milton Freeman fined her $210.

Construction will start on a $6,000,000 wharf here next month. Another in nearby Port Moody is nearly completed. Both will handle bulk goods.

More than 1,200 ships called at the port both this year and last. They came from all parts of the world and most were on regular runs, bringing cargoes for B.C. and Prairie points. American, British and Japanese ships predominated.

Dr. Marvin Becker testified that he tried five times to gain the use of the telephone Nov. 11 when he was treating a heart attack victim.

He said he was told to "go to hell."

'Maverick' Tries 'Dragnet' Style Sun. at 7.30 on 4

CBC Visits Cloistered Convent;
GM Theatre Offers Murder at 9 Sunday

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

As one can guess, the Christmas spirit makes itself felt in more than one of the weekend offerings.

Also very much in the news is President Eisenhower's 11-nation trip that will be analyzed and reported upon on several occasions.

Two programs of special interest take place Sunday. One is challenged to a fight by a rough trail boss.

At 7.30, also on Sunday, Maverick western goes some what off-beat. Bret Maverick narrates "A Cure for Johnny Rain," in the tense style of Dragnet. Otherwise the programs are just about as usual.

School Priority Sought

Cowichan School District 65 will apply to the education department for permission to proceed as soon as possible with the most urgent projects listed in the $1,155,292 school loan by-law passed Oct. 24.

To be given first priority are the acquiring and developing of 18 school sites, construction of a $261,000 junior high school, and starting of additions at New Somenos, Bench, and Tansor Elementary Schools.

Better lighting at the Cobble Hill school also is to be included in the "urgent" list.

The board will apply for permission to use funds intended for the proposed new Qualicum Elementary School for an addition to the Alexander Elementary School, where crowding has been acute this term.

Heavy Count Expected In Phone Vote

(From Duncan Bureau) Ballots cast by subscribers on the B.C. Telephone Company's free-calling plan in the Cobble Hill, Duncan, Chemainus and Ladysmith areas will be counted next week, L. A. Huxtable, district commercial manager, said today.

"Municipal officials of the areas affected have been asked to witness the opening of ballots and the counting," he said. "Number of ballots returned to date indicate a high interest in the proposal."

Results will be made known immediately after the count.

The vote among subscribers has been taken on the proposal of Cobble Hill calling free to Duncan, Duncan free to Cobble Hill and Chemainus, Chemainus free to Duncan and Ladysmith, and Ladysmith free to Chemainus. A favorable vote would allow the plan to go into effect about 1962.

Mr. Huxtable said that experience in other areas where the plan is in effect shows telephone usage increased three-fold with elimination of charges on each call between exchanges.

CHAIN SMOKES

DUNCAN — A cigarette chain similar to those operated for liquor started here Friday morning, and by evening one man had 14 "flat fifties."

The liquor chains are staggering somewhat, with a few winners and plenty of disgruntled losers.

Service Clubs Donate Float for Maple Bay

(From Duncan Bureau) NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal council decided Friday to accept a gift of a $600 pontoon-type swimming float for the beach at Maple Bay.

Council assumed the responsibility for upkeep of the float, which is presently being built by the Duncan Lions Club.

Coun. A. Staples said the service clubs behind the project wanted to avoid public liability insurance. Coun. G. Smith cautioned that other groups may come forward with equipment requiring more expensive upkeep, but Reeve C. A. P. Murison was of the opinion the municipality would be covered on the float by its own insurance.

'GYppo-BUILT' SCHOOL CHARGE DENIED

(From Duncan Bureau) A charge made by P. F. Wright of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters that Saham School had been built by a "gyppo" operator from Vancouver was denied here Thursday by Cowichan school board chairman John Horner.

The charge had been made Dec. 10 at a meeting of the Cowichan winter work committee.

Saham School was built by the contractor who submitted the lowest tender, Mr. Horner said.

"I don't appreciate the inference that we didn't get a good job done," he said.

Trustee Mrs. V. W. Tarlton told the board the report from the clerk of works was still on file and reported the construction of Saham School in 1956 was "one of the best jobs we've done."

'I Shall Continue to Work On Problems' Says Murison

(From Duncan Bureau)

Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison, retiring reeve of North Cowichan municipality, said Friday in Duncan that although he is leaving municipal office, he will maintain his interest in municipal affairs.

"I am going to continue to work for the solution of municipal problems," he said at a presentation in the municipal hall.

"I believe building at the municipal level is the foundation on which the development of the province exists."

"If anything of merit was done for the municipality while I was reeve, and I think there was," he told a gathering of council members, "the credit goes to you and your predecessors as much as it does to me. You have shared the responsibilities, and, of course, you are equally entitled to share the credit."

The reeve said nothing about rumors that he may enter higher politics, possibly as a Progressive Conservative candidate in Victoria.

Coun. Gerry Smith gave him a pipe holder and tobacco holder, a gift from members of the council.

FIRST woman mayor of Alberni, Mrs. Mabel Susan Anderson, said following her election Thursday she will take office with a sense of "happy humility." A business woman associated with her husband, William Anderson, in the grocery business, she started her career as a teacher in Alberta. (West Coast Advocate photo.)

UNUSED ROAD TO NOWHERE HAS LOVELY DRAIN ANYWAY

A North Cowichan road that begins nowhere, goes nowhere, and has no use, will remain open because it is drained by 36 feet of tile installed by the neighboring city of Duncan.

It was about to be abandoned by North Cowichan Municipality until the drain was discovered.

A municipal road allowance, it forms the west boundary of property owned by R. G. Brownsey, and is site of a well used by Queen Margaret School.

The well had never been opened.

Coun. D. C. Morton, chairman of public works for North Cowichan, said the fault lay with the city, since it had never applied to the municipality for an easement for the drain.

The road could be widened to 40 feet at one end, but throughout most of its short length it is hemmed in by lots on Centennial Heights subdivision, Coun. Morton said.

OF ALL PLACES

By HORACE SUTTON

LISBON — They're putting name and the old velveteen on the ritz in this old city of magnificence has opened here.

It has no chrome. There are no television sets or radios hanging on heated racks above the tubs. The joint is, in short, beyond the hallucinations of Louis XIV, Peter the Great, or Niarchos the Greek.

Here at the Atlantic's edge, where Crusaders liberated the city from the Arabs in 1147, and Portuguese navigators later set out to discover much of the world, the Ritz incarnate has come to town. The new hotel with the old gilded

Real Splendor

This new Ritz has 300 rooms, is paved with marble and brilliant tile and is covered with enough knee-deep broadloom carpet Delaware wall to wall. Hollow columns of alabaster, illuminated from the inside, light corners of the lobby. With its crystal chandeliers, its walls of mirrors and its fussy Directoire furniture, the ballroom is a little Versailles. Every bath is sheathed, walls and floors, with marble and green tile. Every bath has a stall shower with a glass door and towels as big as tents hanging on heated racks above the tubs. The joint is, in short, beyond the hallucinations of Louis XIV, Peter the Great, or Niarchos the Greek.

The Lisbon Ritz is a co-operative effort of Prime Minister Salazar and 11 Portuguese millionaires. Salazar had persuasive talents and the millionaires had the kitty. They decided to build a tidy shack such as the world has not seen since the opening of Claridge's in London over four decades ago or the George V in Paris in 1929. Charles Ritz, son of Cesar, ritziest of the Ritzes, calls the latest house to bear the family crest, "a museum."

Bring in Expert

"Europe has nothing else like it," he said. To run the palace, the Portuguese have brought in famed George Marquet, the Belgian hotelier who owns the Ritz and the Palace in Madrid, the Ritz in Barcelona, and the Palace in Brussels, among a string of minor palaces.

Marquet and his family will run the Ritz for at least 20 years. Now 67, his goatee gray, George Marquet is the son of a hotelier who started the dynasty. The son of George II, who is George III, who is 27, is being groomed to take over and already has grown a goatee, which is black. George IV was born to George III two years ago but as yet has no goatee.

MONTE ROBERTS

At this time of the year, most people are concerned with buying such things as turkeys, and chickens, and geese, and hams and possibly a supply of sarsaparilla.

But this dissertation is concerned with the purchase of a small bit of salmon.

Yesterday, the urge came upon me to have a small bit of salmon for the evening meal.

This urge came upon me at a time too late to venture out into the watery wastes of Brentwood Bay, with rod, reel and (censored)-teaser.

Therefore, I went to a large purveyor of foods of all kinds, and I made my way along the packaged meat counter until I arrived at a likely looking small salmon.

Despite the "small size" of this small salmon, I judged it would be too large for consumption at the evening meal, there only being two of us in our house.

So I noted a sign saying "If it ain't there, we'll get it for you—please ring," so I rang a buzzer and a glass panel opened and a pleasant young lady asked, may I help you?

Yes, please, I said, I would like a bit of salmon, about half this salmon here; I said.

Certainly, she said, which half would you like?

Well, I said, if you will excuse the expression, I would like the south half.

Ha, ha, she said; of course sir, I'll have it cut for you, just where would you like it cut?

Hmm, I said, pointing to the mid-section, from here south to just north of the tail.

Oh, oh, she said.

Oh, oh, what? I said.

Oh, oh, you want a centre cut, she said.

Nope, I said, I don't want a centre cut, I just want the south end piece, from here (pointing) to here (a smidgeon north of the tail).

But, sir, she said, as to an idiot child, that IS a centre cut. And that will cost you 85 cents a pound.

So? I said.

If you take all of the fish, she said, from the northern portion down to the extreme south, it will only cost you 60 cents a pound.

Well, 16 cents is 16 cents, so I paid less and got more, including the tail.

But I am so confused, next time I wish salmon, I will venture to the watery wastes of Brentwood Bay, equipped with rod, reel, and (censored)-teaser.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Damages estimated at $50 was caused by fire in a ches-terfield chair in the apartment of Mrs. K. O'Hara, 1429 Vining, at 5:56 p.m. Friday, apparently started by a cigarette.

Fire was confined to engine compartment of a B.C. Electric bus which threw a connecting rod and spilled oil over a hot manifold in the 4100 block Gladstone, Friday noon.

There were several passengers aboard and driver Jack Devine.

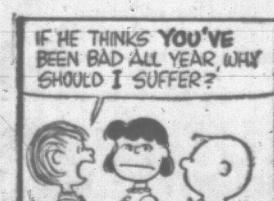

ELECTION AD UP-ISLAND INVESTIGATED

North Cowichan municipal council has ordered an investigation into an alleged infraction of pre-election advertising regulations, following Thursday's municipal voting here.

Returning officer Adolph Vandé Casteyne was asked Friday to take action on a letter signed by the Community Development Committee, allegedly circulated within 24 hours of voting, on behalf of W. T. Bowles of Chemainus and Reginald Clegg of Westholme. Both were elected.

Councillor Gerry Smith said he was sure neither candidate had prior knowledge of the circular.

The matter was raised by reeve-elect Don Morton, who said the penalty for advertising within 24 hours of voting was a $100 fine.

AIR FORCE EXPLAINS THE SUPERSONIC BANGS

Sonic "booms," such as the one that startled thousands of Victorians Dec. 2, will become more and more common, the RCAF said today.

In an official statement explaining the cause of the sound, the air force said "because aircraft of our allies and soon Canadian military and civilian airplanes are travelling faster and faster, breaking the sound barrier is going to become more and more common."

The statement explains that the sonic boom is an intense pressure of sound, comparable to a thunderclap, during a storm or the shock wave of sound from a dynamite explosion.

The air force says severe restrictions have been placed on supersonic aircraft, but "at present no further restrictions are possible without affecting the ability of the aircraft to provide defence against attack."

"We should learn to live with it but at the same time know it is more startling than dangerous."

SHOCK CONE

The statement continues: When an airplane passes the speed of sound, a shock wave forms like a cone around the craft. The cone can be likened to a funnel going through the atmosphere, the pointed end.

Because loudness of sound decreases with distance from the point where it originates, the higher the aircraft is above the ground the weaker the sonic boom will be.

If the aircraft is travelling in level flight, the people most conscious of it will be those directly underneath the flight path. The aircraft in effect, will have dragged the trailing edge of the cone over them.

If the aircraft is diving, or climbing, or turning, the manner in which the trailing edge of the cone touches the ground will vary considerably.

Careful and thorough research has proven that although the sonic boom has great force as a sound, the high altitudes at which jet aircraft operate causes the boom to diminish to a force where it has relatively little power to do actual physical damage to walls, windows, doors and structures.

The USAF set up test structures and then dragged sonic booms over them with supersonic aircraft.

It was found that if there were tension in the structures, coming from twisted door frames or improperly installed windows or brick walls that were sagging, then a sonic boom could occasionally add enough extra pressure to cause damage.

But if the houses were of the normal construction required by building codes, very rarely did any damage result from repeated booms directed at the buildings.

HOLIDAY SEASON SAFETY TIPS FOR WINTER MOTORISTS

Dig Those Crazy Drivers and Play It Cool, Man

Play it cool! Don't lose your temper with those crazy drivers, or you'll also be a holiday-season traffic hazard.

Always anticipate the other driver will do the wrong thing, then you'll be safe.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council issued this warning today and coupled it with several safe-driving tips.

One is that the "careless, apathetic" driver is here to stay, and it's up to the conscientious motorist to keep an eye out for him.

Another is that even one cocktail impairs a person's driving ability and the excitement of the holiday season adds to alcohol's impact.

On careless drivers, the council warns:

"Don't be angry with these fools. Ignore them and play it safe yourself. Anger, in itself, is a traffic danger. An excited, irate motorist will do things he knows he shouldn't do."

The council also offers these winter safe-driving tips:

COLD MOTOR—Let your engine warm up before you start driving in traffic. Otherwise it might stall and produce a traffic hazard.

WIPERS—Keep wipers clear of accumulated ice, and don't wait until the windshield is clogged with snow or mud before turning them on.

REAR WINDOW—Take time out to keep rear windows clear. Vision to the rear is just as necessary as to the front.

TRACTION—Any auto can get stuck on ice or in snow. Carry something to provide traction. Try a pair of rough-surface roofing shingles, lengths of chicken-coop wire or sheets of corrugated cardboard.

SKIDDING—Slow down on slippery roads. If a skid starts, turn the front wheels in the direction of the skid.

STOPPING—Pump the brake pedal several times, don't just push on it. Pumping avoids locking the wheels and putting the car completely out of control.

SPACE—Cars need more space between each other in winter time. Sudden stops by other motorists, stalled cars, pedestrians camouflaged by falling snow or hidden by deep drifts are all reasons why you should leave plenty of room to stop.

STUCK—If your car is stuck in snow, clear the front wheels first. A vehicle will overcome rear-wheel resistance more readily than front-wheel blockage.

Poison—Carbon monoxide fumes are odorless and colorless. Always keep a window partly open. If you start the car in a garage, keep the garage door open.

'Merit' in Plan To Skip Voters

A proposal that school boards should be given authority to raise money and approve construction of new schools without going to the people had "merit," Mrs. W. W. McGill, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, said today.

She was commenting on a suggestion by Reginald Sinkinson, vice-chairman of District 63 (rural Saanich) School Board, following defeat Thursday of a $799,000 school building bylaw for the rural districts of the Saanich peninsula.

"I won't say I subscribe fully to the idea," she said, "but there is merit in the proposal."

Reeve George Chatterton said Mr. Sinkinson's proposal was somewhat radical, but he could understand his point of view.

He said the present system of going to the people to raise money for schools and other essential services is not based on British democratic principles.

Reeve Chatterton said he would be satisfied if the Municipal Act was amended to permit a simple majority to approve money bylaws.

AMERICAN INFLUENCE Under the British democratic system, he explained, the people elect their representatives and give them the power to act and to carry out certain policies.

That is, they have the power to carry out policies which the people have endorsed by electing them," he said.

He said the present system of electing boards and other public bodies with no power to act is an American influence.

Complete Fleet At Home

All 20 commissioned ships in the RCN Pacific Command will be in Esquimalt Harbor over the Christmas and New Year's season.

The last two to arrive will be the destroyers Ottawa and Saguenay, which left San Diego Friday after work-ups following refit periods at dockyard. They left Dec. 3, are due back at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Ship's companies are busy cleaning up the ships and brightening them with decorations and the traditional Christmas trees at the masthead.

Wherever possible, married men are given preference for shore leave on Christmas and New Year's Days, with duty watches aboard ship being sure of turkey and trimmings, too.

The destroyers will be connected to the Pat Bay Highway at Douglas or extended to Vernon before connecting up to the highway.

They will be important for people employed in the city but living in outlying areas, he said.

The purpose of the commission, he said, would be to reach an agreement on what roads are to be the major arterial routes connecting the four municipalities.

The reeve said if the municipalities reached an agreement on inter-municipal roads,

the right-ways could be obtained before subdivision development took place along the proposed routes.

FABULOUS SUMS

"If we don't do something now to get these right-of-ways before the land is developed," he said, "it will cost fabulous sums of money to get inter-

municipal roads into shape in later years. Homes will have to be removed and land bought at expensive prices."

The commission, he said, would establish where Blan-

Shard Street would be extended. That is whether it would be connected to the Pat Bay

Highway at Douglas or extended to Vernon before connnecting up to the highway.

There was the question of establishing the routes of two or more north-south roads. In-teriorian Road has been mentioned as one possible route.

The extension of Foul Bay

Road was another question to be resolved between Saanich and Oak Bay.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Bring Christmas Spirit Into Shut-Ins' Bedrooms

By PENNY SAVER

If you have a shut-in on your Christmas gift list you can bring a festive air right into a bedroom with one of the special arrangements made up by a down-town florist.

One I've seen is contained in a brandy snifter, standing at least eight inches high. Inside the snifter, on a bed of billowy angel hair is an arrangement of golden reindeer, glittering snowmen, Christmas trees and gay colored balls. Decorated brandy sniffers are selling at $2.50.

Another idea for an invalid friend would be one of the dainty angel planters I've seen. Full-skirted feminine angel is carrying a red-ribbed gift in her hands.

Lavish use of gold leaf brightens her shiny halo, wings and dress. With an arrangement of roses, carnations or other flowers you would have a gift that would bring many happy hours of pleasure. Depending on your choice of flowers, planter and flowers sell for $3.50 or a little more.

Charming gift idea I've seen are the dainty jewelled mesh rosary cases containing rosaries to match. These can be bought in either silver or gold and cost $4.95. Special case has figured clasp and trim of blue stones. Recipient would cherish this particular gift for many years to come.

How many times have you been caught without a sewing needle and thread just when you needed them most? Small round container that simply oozes glamor is perfect to carry in any woman's handbag. Top of container is in pretty French paste, centred with delicate pastel rose.

Inside are tiny spools of thread, all ready to provide that "stitch in time".

Pork Dish Particularly Pleasing

One of the most appetizing aromas ever to emanate from a kitchen is that of meat and stuffing cooking together. Few cuts of beef, veal and lamb are cooked with stuffing but practically all cuts of pork are good this way.

The bone in shoulder and leg roasts may be removed and the hollow stuffed before roasting. For loin roast the stuffing may be tucked into a deep slit which you can cut close to the ribs for the full length of the roast. Or, if you

In London

Miss Judy Tweedie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Tweedie, 1107 McKenzie Street, is now in London, Eng., where she is on staff of the Hunting Aero Survey Corporation. Miss Tweedie travelled from here to Lisbon by air in June, 1958, and with a companion, Miss Beverley Rogers, of Sidney and Vancouver, travelled in midwest Europe and the Scandinavian countries. The two travellers hitch-hiked most of the way until they reached Italy. There, Miss Tweedie bought a motor scooter on which they continued their trip.

Dinner Host

Mr. Larry Johns was host at a dinner party at the Somass Drive home of his parents, Dr. T. H. Johns and Mrs. Johns last evening. Dinner was in honor of bride-elect Miss Lorraine McLeod and her groom-elect, Mr. Harold Robinson, whose marriage took place today. Other invited guests were the Misses Marilyn Ardley, Marilyn Miller, Laurine McLeod, Barbara Courtney, Rosemary Hamilton and Linda Johns and David Price, Eric Robinson, Adrian Greenbank, and Phillip Clarke.

Hard and fast New Year's resolutions, as such, are often tiresome and seldom get past the month of January, but a few notions as to personal improvement could actually be fun!

After all the hectic hustle and bustle of the holidays don't let down, spring is on the way!

Nona Perk up,

If you are fortunate enough to receive a gift of cash or a small check from Santa Claus, be selfish, don't buy a new teakettle or use it to pay junior's dental bill (let father do that). Spend it on yourself.

The suggestion is not as selfish as it sounds. Self-improvement is so satisfying that you will be a happier person and therefore will spread happiness all about you. There are any number of things you can do to give yourself a 1960 lift.

CHANGE TONE

A woman's hair is truly her crowning glory and a slight change of color or style could be reason for compliments.

January is a good time to give up the elaborate hair styles of the festive season and have something simple that you can manage during the blustery days ahead.

News from New York, tells us that the new "coifs" will be smooth and head-hugging; a little longer, yet soft and feminine. A message of interest to the average woman, is the fact that hair stylists are giving more thought to the day after your hair-do. They are interested in overcoming the blustery days ahead.

A Colored Picture Presented in Women's Activities for Year

During 1959 hundreds of thousands of Canadians lined the streets for a glimpse of Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, during a grueling 15,000-mile tour . . . Ottawa welcomed a new chatelaine at Rideau Hall . . . Toronto men and women stared in fascination at a plastic woman . . . controversial Morn Whyte left Ontario for Nelson, B.C.

These were just a few of the events in the colorful picture of women's activities during the past year.

Canada's Queen gained new respect and admiration during a 45-day tour which took her across the continent and back. Highlight of the tour was the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway with United States President Eisenhower at Montreal.

Only when the tour was completed did Buckingham Palace announce that the Queen was expecting her third child early in 1960.

NEW CHATELAINE

In Canada's capital, Mme. Georges Vanier, wife of the newly appointed Governor-General, settled into her role as chatelaine of Rideau Hall. She had first gone to Rideau Hall as a bride when her husband was aide to Governor-General Byng.

It was a tearful farewell when Celia Franca made her farewell stage appearance in Toronto. She has become full-time artistic director of the National Ballet of Canada, a job she coupled with her stage dancing for eight years. The 37-year-old ballerina has been dancing for 23 years.

Tall blonde Rosemary Catherine Keenan, 19, of Fredericton, was crowned Miss Canada and brown-haired Anna Finlayson, 18, of Vancouver, became Miss Grey Cup. But 21-year-old Toronto beauty, Irene Dobler, abandoned the Miss Maple Leaf title in favor of marriage. She charged that all she acquired from the Montreal contest was a bottle of hand lotion, an ashtray and a $600 debt for clothes.

Mrs. Gerald Voyer, 39, of Bagotville, Que., gave birth to her sixth set of twins in 18 years of marriage and Mrs. Marie Cyr, 48, of Ledges, N.B., gave birth to her 27th child.

Fashions which received designer awards from the Ribbon Fashion Associates this year include these designs by top names. White cashmere sweater, left, is banded in floral pattern brocade woven edge ribbon in a design by Tina Leser. She pairs the sweater with turquoise velveteen lounging pants. Satin ball gown by Mr. Mort, centre, is pearl grey. Bodice is tied in pink velvet ribbon that picks up the rosy shades of the printed flowers. Black point d'esprit over silk crepe is wrapped at the waist and tied in a huge bow of black velvet ribbon in this design, right, by Jane Derby.

DEAR ABBY . . . Who Is To Blame, Mother?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Madame Indra Devi

I had one woman pupil who started at the age of 80."

But the best time to start teaching yoga to a child is between the ages of six and eight, she explains.

Madame Devi believes one of yoga's most important benefits to housewives is its ability to relieve tension. She explains:

"Each day, women often have to do the marketing, look out for the children, clean the house, cook and then go out with their husbands at night. I don't know how they do it."

"One woman told me she did it by drinking coffee and smoking cigarettes during the day and taking sleeping pills at night. She ended up in a mental institution."

Madame Devi doesn't believe she would be likely to happen to a yoga practitioner.

Another of yoga's mental benefits is its improvement of a person's attitudes. Madame Devi tells the story of a friend who hated washing dishes until she took up yoga. She combined deep breathing with thinking pleasant thoughts while standing over the sink. Soon, Madame Devi explains, she learned to love the chore.

HIDDEN TALENTS

Yoga also is said to uncover a person's hidden talents. Madame Devi says that she knows women who started writing, sculpting and painting after practicing yoga. "They didn't even know that they could do these things," she says.

Although Madame Devi does not claim yoga to be a disease cure-all, she does believe it helps the body combat illness. Some of the afflictions she says the exercises help prevent are colds, fevers, sore throat, constipation, headache and fatigue.

She also views the exercises combined with dieting as an excellent weight reducer. Her diet recommendations include eating fresh fruit, drinking plenty of water and "generally eating less of everything."

Madame Devi learned yoga in India in 1927 and later taught it there. She is the first westerner to ever teach the ancient exercises in that country, she maintains. She also taught it in China before opening her Hollywood studio, she says.

Takes Longer

Cooking frozen meat, to avoid loss of moisture due to thawing, takes about one-third longer than fresh meat.

Fashions by Top Designers Take Coveted Blue Ribbon

NEW YORK—The imaginative use of ribbon in fashion brought out a full display of designer talent at a recent showing here.

From a christening dress on through to beautiful girls as well as big girls.

Ribbon appeared even in lounge wear and casual wear as trim for cashmere sweaters, waist banding for a skirt or decorative trim on slim pants.

The eight designers who were presented with Second Annual Ribbon Designer's Awards were: Jane Derby, Lee Evans of Mr. Mort, Tina Leser, Helen Lee of Alyssa, Mr. John, Sally Victor, Vanity Fair lingerie and Lily of France.

More than 200 fashion editors throughout the country took part in the balloting. Final selection of winners from the list of nominees was made by Gail Dugas, women's editor of Newspaper Enterprise Association; Betsy Blackwell, editor-in-chief of Mademoiselle; Eugenia Sheppard, women's editor of the New York Herald Tribune and Nancy White, editor-in-chief of Harper's Bazaar.

Even a swimsuit made entirely of black moire ribbons and designed by Tina Leser was paraded before an audience made up of members of the fashion industry.

A Dior Wedding Gown For New Bride of Shah

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—

Farah Diba, 21-year-old former art student who becomes the bride Queen of the Shah of Iran Monday, has received the final item in her trousseau—a Dior wedding gown.

She tried it on as soon as it arrived by plane from Paris Friday. The other dresses, coats and accessories that she selected on a recent Paris shopping spree were already in the Queen Mother's palace, where Farah is living temporarily. They fill about 60 pieces of luggage.

The wedding gown is of princess satin in a light-blue pearl-grey shade which designer Yves Matthew Saint Laurent selected for the bride. It Spot Two Keys to Key Spot?

There must be something special behind the closet door being investigated by the youngsters above, for Santa, who keeps track of innumerable keys, has had a duplicate made of this one. Can you find the twin keys in the group shown here? To help those who join in the search, Answer: Two keys are in the group.

Answer: Turn keys are in the group.

GIFTS DRIVE YOU DOTTY

Let's suppose 64 cube-shaped gift packages are stacked to form one large cube, as shown at left.

Sixteen black dots, evenly spaced, are painted on each of the large cube's six sides.

When the small packages are separated from the larger unit, a number are found to have three dots, some have two dots, others one, and still others none. How many in each category?

Answer: There are 16 dots in total.

BEASTALL ADVISES

There's No Gift Problem When Friend Is Gardener

By JACK BEASTALL

It has always seemed to me that gardeners are the easiest folks for whom to select Christmas gifts, possibly because there are so many things they must replenish every season, and there are so many things which would increase the pleasures of gardening.

Wheelbarrows and garden carts get a good share of publicity at Christmas time, but there are numerous items not usually linked with gifts which any gardener would really appreciate.

Some items are used rapidly, such as plant labels of various types and the waterproof pencils used for marking these labels. These are things which make a good gift for a favorite grandchild to give.

The greenhouse and indoor gardeners will use the four-inch wooden pot labels, while the outdoor gardener prefers the eight-inch garden label. Rock garden enthusiasts use the more permanent plastic or metal labels, and write on them with a pen and India ink.

Clay pots are always being cracked by frost or broken in handling, and any gardener who grows plants in pots would welcome a gift of 50 in assorted sizes, or in the one size he uses most.

SQUARE SPRINKLERS

When you know a friend whose garden hose was leaking last summer, or someone who could use another 50 feet to reach the far corners of his lot, there should be no difficulty in deciding their gifts. And a lot of us would welcome one of the newer types of sprinklers, especially those which cover a square area.

Soil heating cables make wonderful gifts. They can be used to make a hotbed of an ordinary cold frame, or be installed in a greenhouse bench for the starting of seedlings and the rooting of cuttings.

The owner of a cold greenhouse might appreciate one of the small heaters which operate on electricity, or those which operate on kerosene, and are ideal for keeping the structure just above freezing when the temperature gets really low outside.

If we were living in Australia where Christmas comes at the beginning of summer, we should possibly give all our gardening friends outdoor planters because it is almost winter with us we tend to pass these by in favor of the potted indoor plants.

Since Victoria experiences very few periods in winter which are unsuitable to outdoor planting, we actually neglect a vast source of material.

WIDE CHOICE

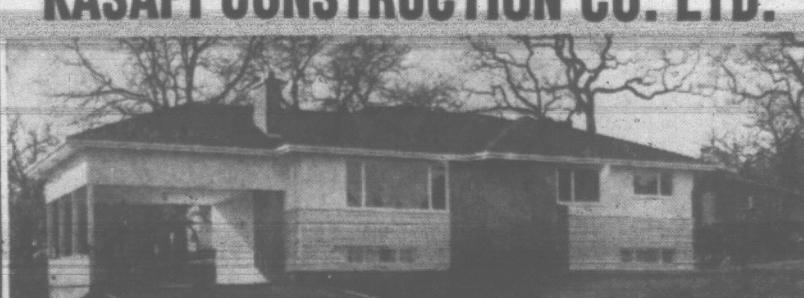

A specimen conifer dressed as a Christmas tree, or a shrub with a bow to match its scarlet berries, would delight any gardener. Rhododendrons, the dwarf varieties for the rockery with all their buds set for next year's flowers, are the most fascinating plants when gift wrapped.

Heathers in flower, evergreen shrubs including those with golden foliage, plants for the rock garden, creepers, and climbers for walls, fruit trees, fruit bushes, can all be planted now and they make attractive gifts that increase in value and beauty, and are constant reminders of the thoughtful donor.

The owner of a new garden gift such as a load of rocks, or soil, or sand, and no gardener could refuse a load of manure.

Among the things we all need but rarely receive as gifts are garden lines, plant stakes, rolls of plastic plant ties, watering cans, screens for sifting soil, nozzles for sprayers or for the garden hose, hose washers which are always getting lost, and I am sure you can think of a lot more.

Wheel-Cutting Trick

Oldtimers may chuckle at the simplicity of this basement workshop trick, but once in the life of every do-it-yourselfer, the question crops up:

How do you cut out round wheels (for garden furniture, for instance) without a band or jigsaw?

The answer is simplicity itself.

After drawing the wheel on the material (fir plywood, made with waterproof glue and cross laminated for strength), makes sturdy wooden wheels that won't warp, trim off as much of the excess fir plywood as you can by making straight saw cuts.

It is not necessary to elaborate on the usefulness of hand tools as gifts. Any gardener who has received a stainless steel trowel and fork has never forgotten the giver.

A ready-made cold frame would be most acceptable to many a gardener, while others would appreciate an additional attachment for their mechanized cultivator, but it would be leaping off the deep end to suggest a greenhouse or an extra lot or two for the accommodation of the gifts.

Just in case there is still a gardener on the list whose gift is difficult to select, you always have as a last resort that wonderful invention—the gift certificate.

Although not a widely advertised service, most nurseries and garden supply stores will issue certificates to any value you state, and the recipient can apply the amount on a purchase of his own choice.

This is often the most appreciated way of saying "Merry Christmas" to a gardening friend.

(flats), or an assortment of the veneer plant bands in which seedlings are grown so that the roots are undamaged when the time comes to set them in the garden.

In bags there are fertilizers of every type, soil conditioners, peat moss products both plain and fortified, and lime; and there are those small envelopes which contain the vital ingredients for turning plant refuse into rich valuable compost.

In bottles and cans there are insecticides, ovicides, fungicides and herbicides, in both liquid and powder forms, but be sure to label them "handle with care," and include a suggestion to wash the hands before eating and put the gift out of the reach of the kiddies.

ITEMS IN WOOD

For pruning there are secateurs, the kind we have always wanted ourselves, shears, loppers, long-handled pruners and pruning saws, also the compounds used to cover the wounds after we have made them.

The owner of an established garden could possibly use something made of wood, such as Cape Cod chairs for the lawn, trellises for the climbing roses, ready-made archways, the knocked down material for building seed or seedling boxes

Thank You, Children!

School children are setting the pace in this year's Christmas campaign for the war-mutilated youngsters of Korea.

Hastily-formed caroling groups, school classes, Scout and Guide packs and 'teeners' clubs have taken the lead. Singly and in delegations they bring their money to The Times—in piggy banks, paper bags, tightly-rolled envelopes and sometimes just spilled from a little clenched fist.

As one sub-teen girl explained in a letter:

"We're so well off, I can't enjoy my own Christmas unless I do something for them."

By some mystic instinct, youngsters of East and West are drawn together by the spirit of Christmas. Color means nothing to them, nor race, nor religion. At this tender age, they are happily free from prejudice.

And so they give—knowing, unselfishly, that the dreams of a little girl in Seoul are not far removed from those of a little girl in Victoria; that there is some kind of inequality, however incomprehensible, between life in peaceful Canada and war-ravaged Korea.

We grown-ups, who cause all these troubles, thank you, children of Victoria.

KOREAN CRIPPLED KIDDIES' FUND

Fine Response From Schools

Students of Norfolk House School for girls swelled the Korean Crippled Kiddies' Fund by $19.21 when they took a collection at the annual Christmas assembly Thursday.

Their collection was delivered to the Times in a brown paper bag, filled with pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and a few dollar bills.

The collection followed an address by the headmistress, Winifred A. Scott, in which she told of the need for Canadian boys and girls to think about the welfare of children in less fortunate lands.

Donations are listed today from seven schools, a fine example of generosity.

Money received has now passed the $4,000 mark.

The Christmas drive is for funds to build a rehabilitation centre for war-crippled children in Seoul's Sam Yook home for the disabled.

Contributions may be sent or brought to the Times downtown office, 1215 Broad, or to the main office, 2631 Douglas.

$129,926 Theft

EDMONTON (CP) — A 55-year-old accountant at Western Construction and Lumber, Adolph de Brujin was arrested at his home Friday night and charged with the theft of $129,926 from the firm over a 19-year period.

SPEED DEMON PHILIP GUNS FLYING SAUCER

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (UPI)—The Duke of Edinburgh flew Britain's "flying saucer" too fast for her test pilot's comfort Friday.

"Will you slow down a bit, sir?" test pilot Peter Lamb shouted to the Queen's husband as he piloted the Saunders-Roe Hovercraft at about 32 miles per hour a foot above the waters of the Isle of Wight.

Prince Philip grinned and cut his speed.

"We haven't enough experience of the higher speed for me to be entirely happy travelling over 40 knots," Lamb said later.

The Duke was testing the "flying saucer," which skims over land or sea on a cushion of air, for the first time. He said he was "thrilled to bits" by his trip.

'Love in the Clouds' Leads to Danish Altar

AARHUS, Denmark (Reuters)—Robert Kellogg, son of a Chicago banker, was married today to Elisabeth Eriksen, daughter of a Danish farmer, climaxing a romance that began in the clouds over Canada two years ago.

FIRST SIGHT

"It was love at first sight," Elisabeth said. "I was planning to go back home to Denmark—but I stayed for another two years in Canada."

"When I came back last year, Robert followed me and asked me to marry him."

The bridegroom's parents, his two brothers, John and Payne, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eberson Gaines, made the trip to Denmark for the wedding.

Their romance began two years ago when Robert, sales chief of a Vancouver timber firm, stepped aboard a TCA plane between Vancouver and Victoria, and spotted Elisabeth, who was working as an airline hostess.

Robert, 28, and Elisabeth, 24, were married at the high altar of ancient Aarhus Cathedral here in this historic East Jutland university town.

About 60 guests—mostly members of the two families—watched the ceremony. Hundreds of citizens lined the square outside or strained vainly for a glimpse of the couple from the side aisles of the long cathedral.

Thank You, Children!

School children are setting the pace in this year's Christmas campaign for the war-mutilated youngsters of Korea.

Hastily-formed carolling groups, school classes, Scout and Guide packs and 'teeners' clubs have taken the lead. Singly and in delegations they bring their money to The Times—in piggy banks, paper bags, tightly-rolled envelopes and sometimes just spilled from a little clenched fist.

As one sub-teens girl explained in a letter:

"We're so well off, I can't enjoy my own Christmas unless I do something for them."

By some mystic instinct, youngsters of East and West are drawn together by the spirit of Christmas. Color means nothing to them, nor race, nor religion. At this tender age, they are happily free from prejudice.

And so they give—knowing, unselfishly, that the dreams of a little girl in Seoul are not far removed from those of a little girl in Victoria; that there is some kind of inequality, however incomprehensible, between life in peaceful Canada and war-ravaged Korea.

We grown-ups, who cause all these troubles, thank you, children of Victoria.

Mild Mr. Chen Brutally Blunt

This is the fourth in a series of articles by Times editor Bruce Hutchison written after his recent visit to Taiwan (Formosa), where he interviewed Chiang Kai-shek and other leaders of the free Chinese.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The hardest-working servant and general factotum of the Republic of China in Taiwan is its vice-president and prime minister, Mr. Chen Cheng.

His appearance is surprising, learned in a London club of retired English generals. But the West had better understand them, for he is the heir apparent to President Chiang Kai-shek in a vital bastion of American power.

Mr. Chen, as he received me, looked as British as his pleasant chintz-covered reception room—a diminutive figure in well-cut Western clothes, neat like his mind.

SPEED DEMON PHILIP GUNS FLYING SAUCER

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (UPI)—The Duke of Edinburgh flew Britain's "flying saucer" too fast for her test pilot's comfort Friday.

"Will you slow down a bit, sir?" test pilot Peter Lamb shouted to the Queen's husband as he piloted the Saunders-Roe Hovercraft at about 52 miles per hour a foot above the waters of the Isle of Wight.

Prince Philip grinned and cut his speed.

"We haven't enough experience of the higher speed for me to be entirely happy travelling over 40 knots," Lamb said later.

The Duke was testing the "flying saucer," which skims over land or sea on a cushion of air, for the first time. He said he was "thrilled to bits" by his trip.

'Love in the Clouds' Leads to Danish Altar

AARHUS, Denmark (Reuters)—Robert Kellogg, son of a Chicago banker, was married today to Elisabeth Eriksen, daughter of a Danish farmer, climaxing a romance that began in the clouds over Canada two years ago.

Robert, 28, and Elisabeth, 24, were married at the high altar of ancient Aarhus Cathedral here in this historic East Jutland university town.

About 60 guests—mostly members of the two families—watched the ceremony. Hundreds of citizens lined the square outside or strained vainly for a glimpse of the couple from the side aisles of the long cathedral.

Their romance began two years ago when Robert, sales chief of a Vancouver timber firm, stepped aboard a TCA plane between Vancouver and Victoria and spotted Elisabeth, who was working as an airline hostess.

"It was love at first sight," Elisabeth said. "I was planning to go back home to Denmark—but I stayed for another two years in Canada."

"When I came back this year, Robert followed me and asked me to marry him."

The bridegroom's parents, his two brothers, John and Payne, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eberson Gaines, made the trip to Denmark for the wedding.

The escapes are Robert Smart, 20, jailed for joyriding, and Donald Gray, 24, sentenced for burglary in Victoria police court recently.

Smart is described as six feet tall, 150 pounds, blue-eyed, with dark brown wavy hair and a heart-shaped tattoo with the letters "BF" on his left forearm.

Gray is five feet eight inches tall, 150 pounds, brown-eyed, with reddish-brown hair, ruddy complexion and heavily-freckled arms.

NATO FRiction FADES

Ike, De Gaulle 'Frank, Friendly'

PARIS (AP)—The Western Big Four today made some progress in patching up American-French differences and agreed on a date, place and agenda to propose to Russia for East-West summit talks.

President Eisenhower conferred privately with President de Gaulle and urged the French leader to yield on his go-it-alone policy in NATO. There was no sign that de Gaulle had yielded. Later, however, diplomatic informants said there had been an improvement in French-U.S. relations.

Diplomatic officials confirmed that a note proposing the summit meeting to Nikita Khrushchev would be polished up Sunday or the next day and immediately sent to the Soviet premier.

Although no details were given it was understood the time would be the last 10 days in April and the place would be Geneva.

Reuters news agency said it was learned that Khrushchev has indicated willingness to accept April 25 as a starting date for East-West summit talks in Geneva.

The agenda is understood to include disarmament and the German question, tied to the Berlin problem.

Agreement on the agenda was reported by the West German press spokesman, Felix von Eckhardt. He said other proposed topics deal with East-West relations generally.

Note Monday

The Western Big Four note to Khrushchev will be sent before Monday noon, James C. Hagerty, U.S. presidential press secretary, said.

Formal invitations, approved by all four, will be issued before their meeting here ends Monday, he said. He added, however, the four leaders have not specifically agreed on the date they will propose.

After the first session of the short days and long nights, Monday actually will be the "shortest day of the year."

It also will mark the end of the short days and long nights. Monday actually will be the "shortest day of the year."

Pay Scale Equal To Vancouver

Greater Victoria's 775 school teachers today received "substantial" salary increases through an arbitration board award.

The increases will bring the pay scale in line with metropolitan Vancouver teachers.

Here is the breakdown:

Teachers with six years' training will now get $5,000 to start, rising to $8,220 in 14 years. Previously it was $4,500 to start, increasing to $7,260 in 12 years.

There are 202 teachers involved in this group, at the high school level.

Teachers with five years' training will get $4,700 to start, increasing to $7,710 in 14 years. Before they received $4,200 to $6,600 over 12 years. These are mostly grade 10 to 12 teachers.

Teachers with four years' training—there are 73 of these—now have a salary schedule of $4,100 to $6,500 in 12 years. Previously they earned $3,800 to $6,000 over 11 years.

Teachers with three years' training, numbering 142, now receive $3,800, increasing to $5,800 over 10 years. Formerly they received $3,500 to $5,500.

With two years' training, teachers now receive $3,400, increasing to $5,400 over 10 years. Before, they got $3,200 to $5,000 over the same period of time. There are 209 teachers involved.

Normal school graduates with one year training now get $3,000 to $3,600 over four years. They were receiving $2,800 to $3,400.

PLEASED

Douglas Clark, chairman of the teachers' negotiating committee, said despite the boosts salaries were still well below those in Ontario and in the Winnipeg area.

"But we are pleased with the award. We can now compete . . . we will be able to attract able teachers to the area," he said.

Award was made by an arbitration board consisting of J. Alan Baker, Victoria lawyer; Victor Dryer, QC, Vancouver lawyer, and W. R. McIntyre, also a Victoria lawyer.

They had been studying the question since Monday.

Famed Coach New Alberta Lieut.-Gov.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Dieffenbaker today announced the appointment of American-born Percy Page, former Alberta MLA, as the province's lieutenant-governor to succeed J. J. Bowlen.

Mr. Bowlen died Wednesday, aged 83.

Mr. Page, 72, organized and for 25 years coached the Edmonton Commercial Grads basketball team, which held the world senior women's title for 17 consecutive years. He was principal of the Edmonton Commercial High School.

He was elected a Progressive Conservative MLA at the provincial general election on Aug. 5, 1952, and re-elected in 1955. He lost his seat in the election held this summer.

Born in Rochester, N.Y., of Canadian parents, he came to Canada in 1890. He was educated at Hamilton Collegiate Institute and Queen's University.

In 1910 he married Maude Roche of St. Thomas, Ont.

He is a member of the United Church.

British Leaders Too Mad to Talk

LONDON (Reuters)—Two Liberal newspapers asserted Friday that Prime Minister Macmillan and Labor leader Hugh Gaitskell dislike each other so intensely they have difficulty taking part in private discussions necessary to keep parliament functioning properly.

The press comments follow a bitter clash Thursday in the House of Commons between the two men over a special commission set up to study the constitutional state of the Central Federation, which consists of Nyasaland and Northern and Southern Rhodesia.

The Guardian of Manchester says parliament had seen nothing comparable to the clash "since Lloyd George and Neville Chamberlain used to snap at each other."

It adds that Gaitskell "quite plainly" suspects that Macmillan "has been covering up some private commitment" to Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation.

New Plea By Nikita To Disarm

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Khrushchev renewed his appeal in a letter published today for "total and universal" disarmament.

The letter, addressed to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, stressed the "overriding importance" of disarmament.

The Soviet premier re-emphasized the importance of his proposal to the United Nations last September for total disarmament under international control.

APPEALS TO ADENAUER

He urged Adenauer, who is attending the Western summit talks in Paris, to bring his "influence and statesmanship" to bear in the cause of controlled disarmament.

"If the government of the Federal Republic of Germany really stands for disarmament, it now has a good chance of supporting the forces which are seeking a solution to what is a great problem indeed," Khrushchev said.

He called upon West Germany once again to give up possession of nuclear arms and sign a peace treaty with the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev said the course he proposed would be the best way to serve the cause of peace.

He was replying to a letter Adenauer sent him last Aug. 27 suggesting that controlled disarmament of both nuclear and conventional weapons should be the primary aim of every statesman.

I Shall Continue to Work On Problems' Says Murison

(From Duncan Bureau)

Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison, retiring reeve of North Cowichan municipality, said Friday in Duncan that although he is leaving municipal office, he will maintain his interest in municipal affairs.

"I am going to continue to work for the solution of municipal problems," he said at a presentation in the municipal hall.

"I believe building at the municipal level is the foundation on which the development of the province exists."

"If anything of merit was done for the municipality while I was reeve, and I think there was," he told a gathering of council members, "the credit goes to you and your predecessors as much as it does to me. You have shared the responsibilities, and, of course, you are equally entitled to share the credit."

The reeve said nothing about rumors that he may enter higher politics, possibly as a Progressive Conservative candidate in Victoria.

Coun. Gerry Smith gave him a pipe holder and tobacco holder, a gift from members of the council.

Councillor and reeve-elect Donald C. Morton said that during his term of office Reeve Murison had won considerable distinction for North Cowichan from outside the municipality.

The school administrators have settled salary negotiations separately. Teachers' salary problems will be arbitrated here Dec. 29.
